

Predict $625,000 City Budget Hike

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
The city of Kingston could face a 1971 tax increase of up to $15 per thousand of assessed valuation, based on preliminary figures released by Mayor Francis R. Koenig today. He estimated cost increases of "about $625,000."

The key to fiscal stability for Kingston could well be the additional aid to localities passed by the State Legislature last year which could bring a projected total of $546,000 in additional revenue to the city.

City officials aren't counting on all of it, however. City Treasurer Orrie R. Riehl, also a county legislator from Kingston, put it this way. "The (state) advised us (the city) not to use any more than two-thirds of it (the $546,000). We did the same thing with the county. The estimated amount was $185,000. We used $115,000."

Riehl explained that the state aid depends on the collection, by the state, of personal income taxes, the value of real property in the city, the population of the city (down about 4,000 persons from 1960) and state sales tax collections. "If they (the state) don't get the money, we don't get the money," Riehl concluded. That money won't be coming in until June 25, according to the treasurer.

While expenses are going up at a record rate (the increase from 1969 to 1970 was only $425,000) revenues generated by the city itself seem to be leveling off. The sales tax, a boon to city fiscal planners in the late '60's rose to $1,090,000 this year and is expected to "remain about the same from here on out."

Koenig held another press conference today to detail departmental requests for more funds for the coming fiscal year which begins on Jan. 1 and runs through Oct. 31.

Today, it was the police and fire department requests for equipment and supplies but not for salaries. Koenig explained that he had not yet completed negotiations with the fire board and the police board and representatives of the firemen's union and the policemen's union on a wage package for 1971.

Koenig said that the request from the police department for items other than salary was $46,737 above this year's total of about $49,000. The firemen's requests were, according to the mayor, about $57,000 above this year's $106,000.

The total for salaries in the fire department for 1970 was $512,832. The city paid its policemen $509,760 in salaries this year.

This year, the city is negotiating jointly with representatives of the police and firemen due to an equal settlement clause in the firemen's contract. Koenig indicated that the salary increase would be the same as the board of public works employees—the seven per cent "cost of living hike"—but sources close to the negotiations indicate an increase for both departments of close to 10 per cent across the board.

Koenig's anticipated increase in spending for 1971 of $625,000 is expected to be revised downward during the next few days. On Monday, Koenig released figures on requests from the recreation department, the Board of Public Works Department and estimates on general government expenses, the latter which includes everything except the BPW, recreation department and police and fire. The increase in projected spending on Monday added up to more than $180,000.

On Wednesday Koenig came out with requests for items covered under miscellaneous government which added up to an increase of $234,000.

Today's requested increases for equipment and supplies for the police and fire departments added up to almost $105,000.

The mayor has still not set firm date for his public hearing on the budget although he narrowed it down today to "probably the 28th or 29th (of December)."

Koenig did not release details on the other side of his budget—projected revenues—but said that he was compiling those figures for publication early next week.

Winter Wonderland Look, But...Many Problems

By JEAN F. DOLAN

KINGSTON
Clearing skies gave a look of winter wonderland to the 15-inch snowfall in Ulster County but on the ground problems of cleanup continued.

In Kingston where a state of snow emergency was in effect until noon today, the Board of Public Works crews tussled with the continuing problem of parked cars hampering snow removal.

Charles J. Cole, BPW superintendent, said today that parked cars remained on secondary streets causing considerable delay in efficient clearing of problem areas. He urged the cooperation of residents in abiding by the snow ordinance. Although car owners had moved their vehicles from in front of their homes they parked them at other locations on the street and the problem remained.

The nature of the storm added to clean up woes also. The heavy snow got a sandwich of freezing rain and then a frosting of more snow. The biggest snow fighting equipment is required in such a situation and it was impossible to do on a citywide basis, Cole said. Secondary hilly areas which were most problematic today were Fourth Avenue in North Rondout and Burnett, DeWitt and Purvis Streets in the Wilbur section.

The snow emergency routes got a second treatment at 11 p.m. Thursday and are in good condition today, Cole said. He estimated that snow loading operations would be started early next week after equipment had been checked and the round-the-clock crews had had some much needed rest.

He stressed that residents must cooperate in eliminating the parked car problem and cited his crews for the excellent job they had done where men and equipment were unham-pered by the street side vehicles.

In the county, highways were slicked with a thin coating of ice in the early morning hours but conditions improved rapidly with rising temperatures during the day. County Highway Department crews had roads "pretty well cleared" and were sanding and cutting snowbanks today.

The only school closing due to road conditions today was in the Saugerties Central School District. All other schools in the area were back in operation after the first snow day of the year yesterday.

During the storm, traffic snarls and interrupted services were characteristic. Rural mail deliveries were not made yesterday in some areas.

Kingston mail carriers started out on their appointed rounds on Thursday but were called in during the morning by Oscar V. Newkirk, postmaster. He said that storm conditions coupled with unshoveled sidewalks presented hazardous going for the on foot mailmen. However all motor routes including the mounted route and rural deliveries were carried out. Seventy-five per cent of the mail was delivered yesterday including all business mail and all deliveries will be made today Newkirk said.

Power service for 160 customers in Mt. Marion was interrupted for approximately two hours Thursday night due to snow conditions in the area. Service was restored by Central Hudson repairmen by 10 p. m.

The official snowfall reading for the City of Kingston was 15 inches up to 2:30 p.m. Thursday. The heavy snow came on the heels of last weekend's accumulation of just under 10 inches. The pile up added to snow removal problems of homeowners and highway crews.

There was no rain mixed with the 15-inch snowfall at Bell-eyre Ski Center. All areas

Clear Snow From Tubes

KINGSTON
The Daily Freeman's Circulation Department urges all motor route subscribers to be sure that their paper tubes are cleared of snow and readily accessible to delivery personnel today and throughout the winter months.

Areas surrounding the tubes should be clear of snow in order to permit delivery cars to make a fast and efficient drop off. This will speed up delivery of The Daily Freeman to all motor route subscribers.

Emergency State In Polish City After Rioting

(Combined Wire Services)
WARSAW — Warsaw Radio reported today that life in riot-torn Gdansk was "fully normal" again after four days of rioting and arson touched off by demonstrations against price increases. But another broadcast from Szczecin, Poland's biggest port, indicated trouble continued there.

Radio Szczecin in an early morning broadcast appealed for observance of the nightly curfew instituted there on Thursday after public buildings were set afire and shops looted. Although there was no mention of violence today, the broadcast was considered evidence that the former German city of Stettin had not returned to normal.

The nightly curfew also continued in force in the tri-cities of Gdansk, Gdynia and Sopot, on the Bay of Danzig 180 miles east of Szczecin. Passenger train service from Warsaw to Gdansk resumed today after a four-day suspension, but plane and telephone service were still suspended.

Warsaw Radio reported that all shops in Gdansk were open this morning and fully stocked, "people were queuing to get morning newspapers; city transport is operating on a full-scale basis and so is the inter-city electric train line."

The broadcast said all workers went to their jobs in all three cities.

Radio Gdansk had reported a new flareup in the city Thursday night, with "gangs of hooligans" attacking food trucks.

The government meanwhile declared the equivalent of a state of emergency throughout the country and warned that demonstrators resorting to violence would be shot on sight.

Premier Jozef Cyrankiewicz told the nation by television Thursday night that 10 to 20 persons had been killed and hundreds wounded in the rioting, which started Monday in Gdansk when shipyard workers demonstrated against increases averaging 20 per cent in the price of food, fuel, clothing and other commodities.

Earlier in the night the premier issued an order which said: "Organs of militia, the security service and other cooperating organs are under obligation to take up all legal means of enforcement including the use of weapons against all persons committing violent attacks on the lives and health of citizens."

Informed sources said a bomb exploded in the back yard of the Soviet Embassy in the capital, but no one was injured. Workmen were called to repair the damage, the sources said.

Western diplomatic missions in Warsaw said tensions appeared to be mounting in other parts of Poland.

A representative of communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomułka was sent to Gdansk and told the workers in a broadcast they would get pay increases in 1971 to offset the rise in prices.

Britain's Communist party newspaper, the Morning Star, said the Polish economic reforms were "planned to readjust wages as well as prices. But while the price increases were immediate, the wage changes were to be delayed."

New clashes and looting were reported Thursday in Slubsk, another coastal town, and in the seaports of Szczecin and Gdynia.

In Copenhagen, the newspaper Ekstra Bladet said its reporter Jacob Andersen reported from Slubsk, a Baltic city of 35,000 between Gdansk

115,000 Abortions Projected

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — A statewide projection based on experiences during the first four months of New York State's new abortion law indicates that 115,000 such operations will be performed in the first full year of the most liberal abortion legislation in the nation.

The projection, released by the State Health Department Thursday, estimates that 64,700 of the abortions will be performed on out-of-state women. The projections were based on findings in a preliminary report covering the period July 1, 1970, when the law became effective, to Oct. 31. It showed there were 34,175 abortions reported throughout the state but a department spokesman said some abortions go unreported.

Statistics compiled for the report indicates 21,568 abortions were performed on state residents and 12,607 on non-residents.

Under the previous state law, abortions were only permitted in cases where the life of the mother would be in danger. The Roman Catholic Church, in a pastoral letter read in all churches in the New York archdiocese several weeks ago, said its survey showed there would be 300,000 abortions performed in the first year, two-thirds of them on out-of-state women. The church, long a critic of such surgical procedures, said each day the abortionists "grow wealthier from the killing of unborn children—some of whom have been heard to cry as they were dropped into surgical trash cans."

A Health Department spokesman said the report has been forwarded to the state's Public Health Council which meets on Friday in New York City. The council may recommend legislation amending the abortion statute based on the department report.

The statewide death rate incident to abortions was 3.8 per 10,000 abortions, slightly higher than the maternal death rate which is about 3.2 per 10,000 live births.

There were 13 reported deaths associated with abortions, all in New York City. Five occurred in hospitals and eight occurred outside hospitals, including one that followed an abortion by a qualified physician.

The report estimated the ratio of induced abortions to live births for New York State residents was 198 per 1,000 live births.

Based on a study of 64 upstate and New York City hospitals, in which 2,000 patient charts were reviewed, the department reported:

—In upstate, 54 per cent of patients were single and seven were between 10 and 14 years old; in New York City, 53 per cent were single and five were between 10 and 14.

—Upstate, 78 per cent of the procedures were dilatation and curettage, and of these 91 per cent were done by the 12th week of gestation; in New York City, the comparable rates were 84 per cent and 96 per cent.

—Upstate, 18 per cent had saline amniocentesis in which some of the fluid surrounding the fetus is drawn through the abdominal wall with a syringe and replaced by a salt solution, and 70 per cent of these were done between the 16th and 19th weeks; in New York City, the comparable rates were 12 per cent and 61 per cent.

—In both areas, about 4 per cent of abortions were done at 20 weeks of gestation or later.

—In both areas, saline amniocentesis was associated with a high rate of complications, and the lowest rate of complications was associated with dilatation and curettage, with suction.

For the upstate area, non-residents were noted (in approximate order of frequency) from Canada, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Ohio, Vermont, Michigan, Illinois, Florida, Maryland, New Hampshire and other states.

For New York City, the approximate order of frequency of home areas of non-residents was New Jersey, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, Florida, Pennsylvania, Canada, Connecticut, Indiana, Michigan and others.

The department observed no indication that non-resident abortions were depriving residents of access to abortion facilities.

A tabulation of non-residents showed: New Jersey, 1,942; Illinois, 807; Massachusetts, 1,238; Florida, 813; Michigan, 609; Connecticut, 665; Ohio, 953; Indiana, 321; Pennsylvania, 830; and Canada 856. Other states made up 3,237 of the out-of-state total.

Rhinebeck Justice Favors Semi-Commune

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

The youth of Rhinebeck may have their chance to experiment with a semi-commune operation next spring, if Town Justice DeWitt Gurnell has anything to do with it.

Retired Judge Clarence Traver owns a farm in the Town of Rhinebeck, and Judge Gurnell told The Freeman that he had been in touch with him about allowing the teenagers to try to raise their own food there.

"I don't think we could go as far as to let them all sleep in a barn," he quipped, "or I might be impeached."

Judge Traver, in his 90s, no longer uses the land for agriculture and said he might be amenable to this venture.

Gurnell made this announcement recently at the grand opening of The Hob, a weekly Saturday night gathering of the younger generation in the basement of the Town Hall.

While it took him some time to convince all members of the Town Board that this should be done, the red-candle-lit room finally opened on the evening of the first snowstorm of winter with about 75 persons in attendance.

Concerning the community farming effort, Gurnell confided that many of the "kids" were not used to work and "once they get working on it, it may be a different story."

He added that he thought jobs were important, and that some of the young people wanted to work, but snow shoveling and occasional cleaning up was the limit of chances.

Gurnell also said that the thought of a local teenage-run employment agency for services might be a good idea. He has allowed some youngsters to pay for the use of the Town Hall for dances by doing cleaning up work.

"Uncle DeWitt," as he is referred to by the teenagers, is considered a soft touch by many of the adults in the town.

His attitude toward drug usage is considered realistic. "There was a father that accompanied his daughter to The Hob last time," he said "who asked if the kids were smoking marijuana down there."

Gurnell replied, "I don't think so; I told them they would wind up in jail if they were caught. But I'm sure many of them smoke when they're not here, and there are a few with LSD."

There have been several cases of bad trips referred to Hudson River State Hospital in the recent past from the Rhinebeck, and Red Hook, communities.

"I have been trying to set up a trip to Hudson River State for some of the kids so they can see what brain damage does to a person," said Gurnell to The Freeman.

Judge Gurnell, a retired pharmacist who now works part-time at Northern Dutchess Hospital in the pharmacy, has had a better than average relationship with the young people growing up in the Rhinebeck area.

Of late, he said, they have been avoiding him, possibly because he was elected a Justice last year. "I've told them to say hello when they see me on the street," he said, "or they might not have a place to get out of the snow Saturday nights."

He commented that he did not believe in "sending the kids to jail" for a first-time usage offense, but was doing what he could against "the pushers."

The Hob is under close scrutiny by the community, as will be "the commune" if it materializes, and "the kids" will have to prove they can do things their own way with a minimum of disturbance to those with more traditional philosophies.

SHOW BENEFITS CHEST — Nearly 125 attended an art show benefit Thursday night at Gov. Clinton Hotel and purchases brought in about $1,000 towards this year's Ulster County Community Chest drive. Mrs. Lillian Salapatis, city and county campaign co-chairman said about 40 paintings donated for the event were sold. Looking at one of the works are (L-R) Anthony R. Triulzi, general Chest campaign chairman; Bryarly Lehmann, guest soloist, who entertained; Bredon Alexander, one of the hosts; Miss Marion Tongue, city-county co-chairman and Mrs. Adele Longendyke, art show chairman. New Views On Abort Law

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state's new abortion law may not be so liberal after the next session of the legislature.

Many lawmakers are having second thoughts about the law, which went into effect less than six months ago.

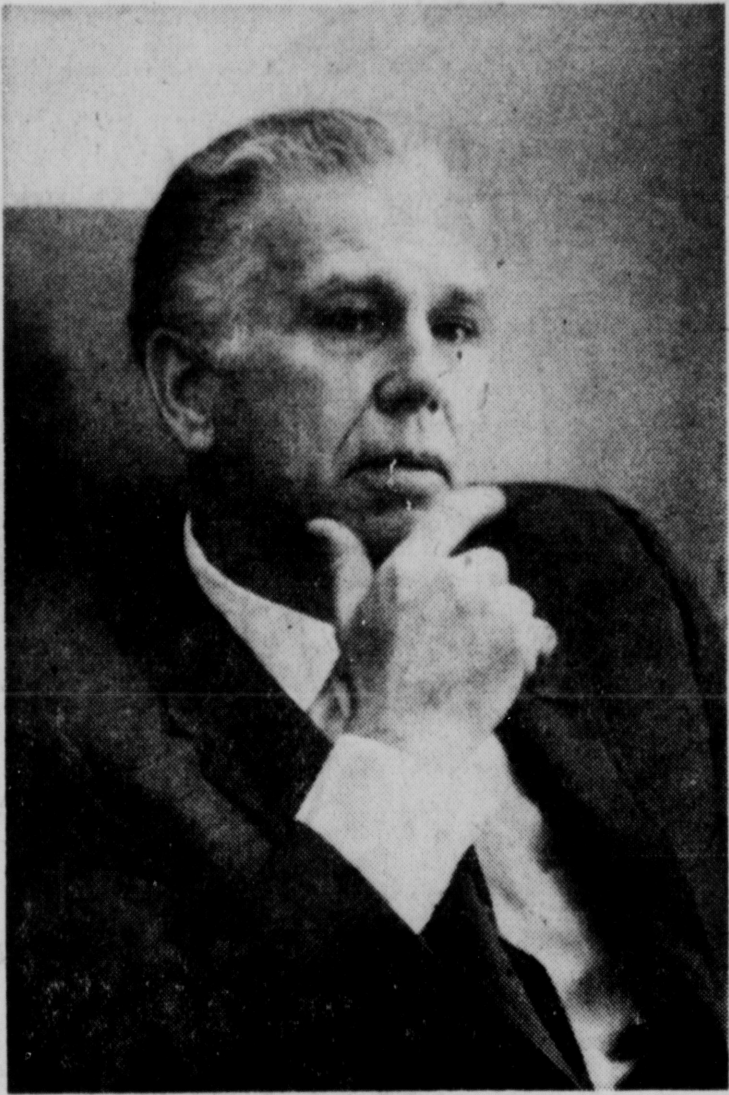

The law, the most liberal in the nation, allows abortions to be performed by physicians with the consent of the mother in the first six months of pregnancy. This is a far cry from the old law, which restricted the operation to those cases necessary to save the life of the mother.

Already, almost a dozen

The U.S. Supreme Court has frowned on residency requirements for state benefits, saying that all citizens are entitled to equal protection.

Sen. Edward J. Speno suggests that one way to get around this objection would be institute a requirement that nonresidents obtain abortions only in those hospitals not receiving any state aid. There are no such hospitals.

None of the leaders support a return to the old, strict standard for abortions, but agree that the legislature may retreat a bit from the law adopted last year.

PERRY B. DURYEA

measures have been submitted for action in the 1971 legislature to change the abortion law. Some would repeal the new law altogether the revert to the old standard; others would add restrictions.

Changes in the abortion law promises to be among the major issues of the next legislature, along with the state budget and education. There also is concern among the lawmakers for legislation beneficial to consumers and conservation.

Proposals will be revived to incorporate New York City as a state and to require wipers and defrosters on rear windows of automobiles. Both have an equally dim chance of passage.

Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges, an old foe of abortion reform, wants to shorten the time period for legal abortions, perhaps to the first three months of pregnancy. This limitation is favored by the State Medical Society.

Brydges was chagrined recently by an attempt to establish an abortion clinic in his home Niagara Falls for women from other states. He will try to prevent out-of-state residents from taking advantage of the law and to prohibit so-called abortion mills.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea says he would like to see the law work a little longer but "I'm kind of loose and open-minded" on possible changes.

This sort of talk is worrying Assemblyman Albert Blumenthal, who fought for several years to broaden the law. "It's wrong to frustrate what we are doing," he said, adding that he will try to fight off the challenges.

Blumenthal points to the report of Gordon Chase, New York City's health services administrator, who pronounced the new law a success.

The legislature has the power to shorten the time period for abortions but might have problems with the courts in attempts to bar out-of-staters.

FITZPATRICK (L) LEAVES COURTROOM
(UPI Telephoto)

UTICA, N. Y. (UPI)—A former assistant cub scout master, described by his friends in testimony as a "non-violent" man, faces the possibility of death in the electric chair after he was convicted Thursday night of the killing of two policemen.

Martin J. Fitzpatrick, 34, showed no emotion as the foreman of the all - male Oneida County Court jury read off the verdict. The 6-foot, 230 pound resident of Martville was convicted on two charges and four counts of murder.

The jury decided that he shot to death Sherrill Police Chief Thomas P. Reilly, 59, and Ptl. Robert Mumford, 60, while fleeing from the scene of a gas station holdup in Canastota. Jurors confirmed the verdict when they were polled individually.

The same jury will meet next Monday to decide whether Fitzpatrick will be sentenced to death in the electric chair or life imprisonment. Conviction of killing a policeman is one of the exceptions to New York

State's ban against capital punishment.

Reilly, head of the state Chiefs of Police Association, and Mumford were fatally shot Sept. 9, 1969, as they stopped a car to question a suspect in a $500 service station holdup.

The jury took 8 hours and 45 minutes to reach the verdict, returned at 10:25 p.m. Judge John J. Walsh had delivered a 68 - minute charge after defense and prosecution lawyers presented their final summations during a morning session.

Dist. Atty. Arthur A. Darri-grand, in summing up the prosecution's case, termed the evidence against Fitzpatrick "overwhelming."

"Nothing you or I could do can bring back Mumford and Reilly," he said, "but we can see that justice is done."

Donald L. Austin, the public defender handling Fitzpatrick's case, said that "in the worst view you can take, I don't think you can conclude this defendant is a killer."

During the two - week trial, the prosecution presented evidence detailing the gun and spent cartridges recovered with the arrest of Fitzpatrick at his home he owned in Syracuse. At the time of his arrest the day after the shootings, authorities said they also recovered a bag containing trading stamps and cash taken in the robbery.

Mrs. Marie Dilapi, a 34-year-old Munnsville housewife, testified that Fitzpatrick forced his way in to her trailer home after the shooting and forced her to drive him to Syracuse.

The defense presented its entire case in one day Wednesday, calling four character witnesses.

Two of the witnesses — a clergyman and a Cub Scout master — each described the defendant as a "non - violent man."

The Rev. Harold W. Scott of Sterling, a Methodist, said he had known Fitzpatrick for three years and on several occasions had Fitzpatrick's help in soliciting funds door - to - door on behalf of the church in Martville.

Earl J. Chapman of Cato, the Cub Scout master, testified that he knew Fitzpatrick in the defendant's former role as assistant scout master.

Richard Nenni, 26, and Laverne Towers, 36, both of Albion, were jailed in lieu of $10,000 bail after being arraigned on charges of second-degree robbery.

Police gave this account:

Two men, both wearing masks, broke into the home of Mrs. Rose Licata, 78, before dawn. One pinned her to the floor while the other found the money in an upstairs trunk and stuffed it in a pillowcase.

The men drove in separate automobiles to a rural spot about three miles away where they buried the pillowcase and $19,760 of the cash in a snow pile before driving off.

Resor responded to charges by Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., that Army intelligence agents had collected information on three Illinois Democrats, Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, Rep. Alvin Klovner and former Gov. Otto Kerner, now a federal circuit judge, during the 1960 campaign.

Ervin contended Wednesday Army investigations of political figures had been conducted because they opposed or expressed doubts about American policy in Vietnam or Nixon administration domestic policy.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. gained permission today to raise its gas and electricity rates by a total of $5.2 million a year.

The company serves about 213,000 customers in the Central Hudson Valley, including the cities of Kingston, Newburgh, Beacon and Poughkeepsie.

The Public Service Commission said the utility would be allowed to file new tariff schedules in line with recommendations made in October by PSC

Examiner Joseph J. Gottlieb.

Central Hudson had sought rate increases totaling $6.5 million. But Gottlieb said a $5.2 million boost would give the company a "fair and reasonable" return of 7.4 per cent on its investment.

The amount of individual increases and their effective dates will not be known until the company files its new tariff. Its original plan contemplated increases averaging 11.4 per cent for electricity customers and 10.4 per cent for gas users.

Man Held on Thruway Murder Indicted in Another Killing

By WALTER S. CLARK

HACKENSACK, N. J. A 30-year-old man in custody at the Ulster County jail facing a charge of murder in the slaying of a 20-year-old gas station attendant on the Thruway near New Paltz, has been indicted by the Bergen County, N. J. grand jury on charges of robbing and killing another man in New Jersey.

Indicted with John Parker Jr., of Mahwah, N. J., Thursday was James J. Mott, 22, of that city. They are accused of murdering Michael McGraw, 25, of West Nyack, while the latter was working at his brother's gas station on Route 17 on Nov. 14.

Parker, and 22-year-old Helen Acker of Mahwah, are accused of murder in the shooting death of Gordon Scharranberg, 20, of Park Ridge, N. J., whose bullet-riddled body was found by a truck driver in a culvert off the State Thruway near New Paltz on October 26.

The woman is in custody in Mahwah where she is held as a material witness in the McGraw murder.

Mott was being held without bail here, as was Mrs. Acker. Bergen County Prosecutor Robert Dilts said he would go to trial with Mott in the McGraw murder case with or without Parker, who is confined in jail at Kingston, in connection with the Scharranberg murder in Ulster County.

Parker and Mrs. Acker are accused of robbing Scharranberg in a gas station where he was working in Mahwah and taking him to the New Paltz area.

State Police previously reported that Mrs. Acker drove the car in which Scharranberg was abducted to New Paltz, where Parker allegedly forced the attendant at gunpoint to get out of the vehicle off the Thruway.

Parker reportedly told authorities after he surrendered in Cleveland, Ohio, that he planned to tie Scharranberg and leave him bound near New Paltz, but the victim started to run away after he fled into the dense Ramapo Mountains. While the search was on, Parker called a friend in New York from Cleveland and told him he would surrender to Rockland County District Attorney Robert Meehan.

Meehan and Senior BCI Investigator Charles Teelon flew to the Ohio city and returned with Parker. At a preliminary hearing held before Town of Ulster (N. Y.) Justice Arthur A. Reilly, a three-page statement considered by authorities as a confession by Parker that he fatally wounded Scharranberg, was read.

Parker was committed to the jail in Kingston by Judge Reilly to await grand jury action.

Several Area Accidents Blamed on Icy Highways

ELLENVILLE Area authorities reported a rash of traffic accidents that occurred on ice or snow packed highways in the county and resulted in injuries to several persons on Thursday.

Ellenville State Police investigated four personal injury mishaps. State Police Sergeant J. A. Fitzgerald reported cars driven by Colleen Davison, 21, of Napanoch, and Edward Quinn, 36, of this village, collided head-on on Continental Road, Napanoch, after the Davison vehicle skidded. The woman and a passenger in Quinn's car, Russell Morgan, 50, of Ellenville, were injured.

At 4:45 p. m. cars driven by Erna Lepke, 58, of this village, and Aurea Salaberios, 25, also of Ellenville, collided head-on on Ulster Heights Road, Town of Wawarsing. Both drivers and a passenger in the Lepke car, Kathleen Varco, 21, of Ellenville, were injured. Aurea Salaberios was cited for failure to keep to the right.

Cars operated by Martin Popel, 17, Kerhonkson, and Risa Leonard, 22, New Paltz, collided on Route 209 Kerhonkson. Both drivers were injured. Another accident reported by troopers involved cars driven by David Eckstein, of Woodstock, and Roger Woolson, 20, of Albany. The crash occurred on Route 209, Town of Rochester. Eckstein was injured.

A New York City patrolman was severely injured Thursday when he was hit by a car as he tried to push his stalled vehicle on the Orange county line in Ulster County. Chester Stech, 23, of New York City, was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance Service, of New Paltz.

It was reported he underwent emergency surgery for a badly mangled right leg. The mishap occurred near mile post 70. Details of the mishap were not available.

In another traffic accident on the Thruway Thursday afternoon, two persons were injured and taken to Benedictine Hospital by Fatum's of Kingston. They were identified by ambulance attendants as Franklin Farrell, 20, of Glens Falls, and a passenger in his car, Jewell Deas, 17, of Augusta, Ga. The mishap involved a tractor-trailer, according to available reports.

At 12:15 a.m. today, Homer La Pierre, 48, of Silver Trailer Park, Newburgh, was injured when his car skidded on Route 9W and hit a pole near Marlboro. The injured motorist received possible back injuries, according to a report of Highland State Trooper B. S. O'Connor.

Meanwhile, Kingston police continued investigation of a report from Thomas G. O'Halloran, 19, of 58 Summer Street, Kingston, who said he was injured in a traffic accident between Kingston and New Paltz. The youth was taken to Benedictine Hospital where 21 sutures were taken to close lacerations of his forehead. He also sustained abrasions and a possible concussion, authorities reported.

O'Halloran, who reportedly was uncooperative with police when his disabled car was found on Greenkill Avenue early today, was cited for driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Meanwhile, Orange County authorities recorded the 77th highway death this year. Ethel Rigby, 56, of Goshen, was killed in a truck-car crash near Goshen. The driver, Valentine Gotthardt, 43, also of Goshen, was critically hurt.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, DECEMBER 18, 1970

The Census Figures

It was in 1958 that economist John Kenneth Galbraith first characterized America as "the affluent society."

Since then, two population censuses have been taken, and on the basis of the most recent one a writer now suggests that for a vast number of American families—current inflation and recession notwithstanding—the affluent society appears to have become the "opulent society."

In the past decade, notes Jack Rosenthal of the New York Times, the average family's earnings increased from $6,900 to $9,400. These are "real" dollars, after adjustment for inflation.

According to the Census Bureau, Americans used this money to buy a wide array of consumer goods. Many, if they already had one item, bought two.

For example, since 1960 the proportion of families with one car rose from 75 to 80 per cent. But the proportion with more than one car nearly doubled, to about 30 per cent.

As a result, more American families now have two cars than have none.

The proportion of families with one television set rose from 90 per cent in 1960 to 95 per cent in 1970, which is almost exactly the proportion of families with indoor toilets.

Families with two or more television sets went from 17 to 29 per cent. The average family now has five radios, compared with three in 1960.

Comparable ownership gains were recorded for other appliances, from home hair dryers to electric carving knives. As Rosenthal points out, however, such gains tend to mask the deep poverty that endures among 10 per cent of American families.

Consider that while 96 per cent of families with incomes over $15,000 have at least one car (63 per cent have two), only 41 per cent of families with incomes under $3,000 have cars.

Among the over-$15,000 families, 85 per cent own their own homes; among the under-$3,000 families, 50 per cent do.

And while nearly 92 per cent of all American families own a washing machine, only about half the under-$3,000 families do.

The census figures also obscure poverty in other ways. They do not reflect the age of appliances nor the fact that many poor people are dependent upon those provided by landlords. The appliances used by the poor are often old and in deteriorated condition.

Yet Americans who are still not affluent and are a long, long way from opulence also made gains. The 10 per cent of families classified as poor represents a sharp drop from the 1960 poverty total of 18 per cent.

Pedestrian Safety

Shopping for Christmas presents can be a very happy time for everyone. But holding items that block your vision while crossing street intersections or walking in parking sections are packages of trouble. Pedestrians should never attempt to cross streets or other areas with tall stacks of packages between themselves and a clear field of vision.

Add jaywalking and ignoring signals to these hazards and one readily can see why pedestrians account for more than 50 per cent of traffic fatalities.

State laws, in various wordings, require automobile drivers to keep their vehicles under control at all times with respect to the conditions prevailing. But pedestrians all too often render compliance an impossibility even for the most conscientious motorist.

The rules of safe walking always should be obeyed.

David Lawrence Says Revenue Sharing With States Ticklish Problem

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's most pressing problem with all the states of the union today is revenue sharing, and there are many intricacies in it. Apparently he decided to appoint a former governor of a state, John B. Connally of Texas, to be Secretary of the U.S. Treasury so as to help in directing one of the most delicate projects in government history.

The Republican governors are this week meeting at Sun Valley, Idaho, Rogers C. B. Morton, Republican National Committee Chairman, who was just been nominated as Secretary of the Interior, told the governors:

"There is one goal, one program which we must pass for the benefit of this country. That is revenue sharing. Every one of you knows that state and local governments are teetering on the brink of financial disaster."

Mr. Nixon has recommended legislation to the present Congress to provide 500 million dollars in annual revenue sharing, and ultimately five billion a year. The fact is the federal government collects 65 per cent of all tax revenues, and the states feel that a larger share of it should be made available for their immediate needs.

It is a ticklish problem, and the President is believed to have appointed former Governor Connally largely to sell to Congress and to the governors the administration's economic plans with reference to revenue sharing. Mr. Connally would specialize in the subject. Since it has many political ramifications, the feeling here is that the President acted wisely in selecting a Democrat so that partisanship would not be involved in the handling of the whole question.

There is little hope that the present Congress will act on the legislation concerning federal and state revenue sharing. Nor is there to be any final action on family assistance programs. Governor Ronald Reagan of California, for instance, fears that hasty Senate passage of these proposals could create more problems than would be solved. He says that the suggestions being made are highly technical and require close study, and that at the next session of Congress there could be a comprehensive plan adopted.

With numerous complex matters arising in the cities and states in the solution of which the federal government is being asked to cooperate, the President would certainly have at hand in Mr. Connally a man experienced in the problems of state government. It is clearly apparent that state and local units of government are often unable to raise the money necessary. One of the resolutions of the Republican governors conference this week says frankly that the "deterioration of services at the local level and particularly in urban areas is undermining confidence in representative government."

When the whole subject of federal and state revenue sharing is surveyed, it becomes clear why the President would look around for a man with the confidence of the governors and also of the opposite political party.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

The last and most enduring of the authoritarian institutions in the world—the Holy Roman Catholic Church—has begun the long downhill slide toward permissiveness. I was born into this church, raised in it, and was taught not to question its dogma. Today the world revolts against authority and the church loses priests, bishops, communications, economic power. The Pope makes a 30,000-mile trip to shore up the foundations of the temple, only to risk sudden death in Manila.

The times are convulsive. There are no winners. Governments good and bad are challenged. Law enforcement officers are "pigs." Campuses are unsafe. Attractive girls make bombs and Molotov cocktails. Teen-agers who do not hold their parents in contempt are "kooks." God is sexual ecstasy.

Mine is not the voice of doom. The world will climb out of this abyss. I just can't afford the generation or two required for the Age of Aquarius to pass.

John XXIII, the interim Pope, saw the holocaust coming. That stout peasant tried to supplant authority with love and brotherhood. For a moment, he was a minority of one. He embraced the world of Protestantism, Judaism, Moslems and Orthodox Christians. A billion adult minds began to hope, and the same number skipped a beat when he died.

No one could succeed him. Paul VI is a scholar, a mediator who makes decisions when the payment is past due. His supreme authority remains unquestioned within the monolithic structure of the church, but he does not communicate with a half billion Catholics, many of whom need to be reassured that there is a heaven and a hell.

He has told the Curia that old men must step down, surrender their authority. This alienates the conservative wing, which has long practiced the art of insulating the Pope against the world. The holy sacrifice of the mass has been altered so that the celebrant no longer turns his back to the people; they participate.

Latin has been replaced by the vernacular; the deep bells of the organ have been replaced by rock groups with long hair and twanging guitars. Priests want to marry. Priests want to vote for the bishop's successor. Priests want more money, more license. A few plot with hippie organizations against the government.

The Pope deplors the Italian venture to legalize divorce. Confession, the cornerstone of the system of rewards and punishments on which the church was built, has, in some places, become farcical. I know Catholics who now confess directly and silently to God from a pew, and feel no compunction in accepting the Holy Eucharist on their tongues.

It is too late to tighten the reins. The Catholic Church, which, by animadversion, prided itself on being about a century behind the times, must now face forward. There is no other way, even though the reins have been loosened, for revenue sharing will be the most challenging task of the Treasury Department, and the Nixon administration, in 1971 and 1972. Whatever plan is devised will have its impact on the states, who may get the feeling that some of their tax money paid out to the federal government is at last coming back for use in their own home territories for the benefit of citizens locally.

There is no certainty as to how much federal funds will be turned back to the states. The estimates at this time vary, but surley an examination will be made of the plight of all the states and the situation that exists in so many of the cities that are struggling with financial deficits.

John D. Ehrlichman, one of the President's counselors, when speaking recently before the National League of Cities in Atlanta, Ga., said:

"There is no doubt that the cities need more muscle power, money is power, and that's one reason why the President favors revenue sharing with the cities. The ability to decide how much money will be spent is also power. That's why we favor block grants, grant consolidation and maximum relief from categorical restrictions."

Looking over all aspects of the appointment of Governor Connally, therefore, it would seem that the President has found someone who will know how to talk to congressional committees and who will also be able to contact governors and mayors to get at the root of the financial problems that face the states and cities today in America.

and high authority realizes that it is responsible to Supreme Authority for its acts.

Whether one is a Baptist or a Jew or a Methodist or Catholic, each temple is a security blanket. As long as the temple retains its authority over souls, the bodies and minds will respond to teaching. When authority at home or in a holy place is compromised, the soul is not lost—the institution is.

This may be the time for communicants of all churches to give love and understanding to their places of worship, rather than ask for it. Those who helped down through the centuries, need help. Only the very young have all the solutions to all the problems. Only they can afford to look beyond the mists of the universe and say: "I don't believe You are out there."

The emotionally mature and the aged believe that He is out there, because they have no option. If He is not out there, watching and forgiving, then all the soaring birds, the sturdy trees, the lofty mountains and the ceaseless seas are a carefully manufactured hallucination. They too are not there. And we are not here. Nothing compounded of nothing equals nothing.

The Catholic Church, at times, abused its absolutism, but, like all creeds, it was a force for good. It will stand. The cracks in the wall will be patched with cement, but the scars will show. Most of all, it was a father, and fatherhood must endure and flourish or the stars will wink out one by one.

Jack Anderson Says 'Truman Pension' to Enrich Nixon More Than Harry

WASHINGTON — A decade ago, John F. Kennedy aroused the spirit of sacrifice in America. "Ask not what your country can do for you," he said, "ask what you can do for your country."

Today the watchword in Washington has changed. The public is still asked to sacrifice, to hold down wage demands, to wait for promised better times. But they are expected to ask not their leaders to make similar sacrifices.

George Romney, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, made a brave attempt to set an example by turning back 25 per cent of his salary. When he suggested that his fellow cabinet officers do the same, however, he didn't get a single volunteer. Instead, the cabinet members accepted a salary increase from $35,000 to $60,000.

President Nixon, whose own pay had been raised from $100,000 to $200,000 dispatched his chief lobbyist to Capitol Hill to seek an increase also in the presidential pension from $25,000 to $60,000. Lobbyist Bruce Harlow slipped around to see Speaker John W. McCormack, who obligingly pushed the increase through the House. It is now awaiting Senate action.

Harlow has spread the word that the President really wants the extra pension for poor Harry Truman. But at 86, Truman won't be around long to collect it. The real beneficiary will be Richard Nixon.

In the same Christmas spirit, House leaders also arranged a little going-away present for the retiring McCormack. They cooked up a resolution that would grant "Old-Jaw" a two-year lease on his present Boston office, $1,200 a year for office expenses, $3,000 a year for stationery, free mailing privileges, $700 extra for air mail and special delivery stamps, a $27,000-a-year assistant and a $12,000-a-year secretary. They also talked about tossing in the use of a chauffeured government limousine.

When the story leaked to the newspapers, the Speaker got hold of his old friend, House Administration Chairman Sam Friedel, D-Md., who is in charge of the special resolution. McCormack suggested magnanimously that he could struggle along without the air mail and special delivery stamps. He also thought his staff could get by on less pay.

And never mind the limousine; his assistant could drive him around.

Nor was McCormack's alter ego, Martin Schweig, now appealing a two-and-a-half-year prison sentence, to be left out. Schweig is best remembered as the wheeler-dealer who imitated the Speaker's voice on the phone to fix cases and who was subsequently convicted of perjury in connection with a backdoor deal. Schweig has been unable to fix his own case, but he has arranged to get back on the House payroll for a nominal sum long enough to qualify for a pension. His benefactor, Rep. Robert Leggett, D-Calif., explained to us that it was his own idea, not the Speaker's, to put Schweig on the payroll.

As a Christmas bonus for themselves, House members also voted this month to increase their stationery allowance from $3,000 to $3,500 apiece. The extra allotment will cost the taxpayers as much as $218,000 each session. Traditionally, the stationery allowance has been so unrestricted that the money may be withdrawn in cash and pocketed by the members.

The House also beefed up the telephone and telegraph allowance for each member, permitting an additional 2,500 minutes of long-distance telephone calls, or 80,000 telegraphed words — or a mixture of both — at public expense during the session.

No wonder the young people, who were stirred by President Kennedy's appeal, have soured on his heirs.

Washington Expose

Empty Talk — The White House has put out a lot of ballyhoo about solving the drug problem. This spurred a bipartisan effort in Congress to authorize almost $50 million for more agents, education, treatment, prevention and rehabilitation. Once the money was authorized, however, President Nixon failed to follow up. There was no support from the White House to get the actual appropriations. Even Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., has complained privately about the administration's do-nothing attitude on funding. Result: both the comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970, and the Drug Abuse Education Act, probably will go down the drain.

Wives' Allotments — Wives of American prisoners in North Vietnam have complained to us that their husbands didn't leave adequate allotments. When they went overseas, they expected to be home in a year. Now they can't get word to the Army, Navy or Air Force to increase the amount. The Defense Department advises us that an appeal can be made to the service secretaries at the Pentagon. The secretaries are authorized to increase the allotments up to 100 per cent.

Rocky Rolls Along With Only Two of Original Cabinet Left

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Only two members of the original cabinet that took office with Gov. Rockefeller are still on their jobs as he begins his fourth term — and soon there will be only one.

This week Rockefeller announced the retirement of one of the last of the veterans, Correction Commissioner Paul McGinnis. And reliable sources report that another, Industrial Commissioner Martin P. Catherwood, will follow suit.

That will leave Agriculture Commissioner Don J. Wicjham as the only survivor among the 15 department heads whom Rockefeller selected to begin his first term with him in January 1959.

What happened to the rest? The answer is that retirements, resignations and deaths caused the nearly complete turnover. In some departments, the leadership has changed hands twice.

Here's the rundown, by cabinet posts.

Health — Commissioner Herman E. Hilleboe, a holdover from previous administrations, was the first to go. He retired in early 1963 because of recurring heart trouble and was replaced by his deputy, Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham.

State — Mrs. Caroline K. Simon left several months after Hilleboe to become a judge of the State Court of Claims. Her successor was John P. Lomenzo, who had been an unsuccessful candidate for comptroller.

Civil Service — H. Eliot Kaplan retired late in 1963 and was succeeded by another Civil Service Commissioner member, Mrs. Mary Goode Krone. She in turn returned in 1967 and was succeeded by Mrs. Ersa Poston, who had administered youth programs.

Banks — Superintendent G. Russell Clark quit in 1964 to accept a position in private industry. Rockefeller chose Frank Wille, a 33-year-old lawyer from his own staff, as the replacement. Wille left last spring to take a federal post and was replaced by William T. Dentzer, who was serving as executive director of the State Council of Economic Advisors.

Mental Hygiene — Commissioner Paul H. Hoch, another holdover, died in December 1964. Sixteen months passed before Rockefeller found a successor, Dr. Alan D. Miller, who had been an associate commissioner.

Conservation — Harold L. Wilm left in 1966 to return to the faculty of the State College of Forestry. His successor, R. Stewart Kilborne, stepped aside last spring when the agency was reorganized into the Environmental Conservation Department. Henry L. Diamond, an environmental expert, became the new commissioner.

Insurance — Superintendent Thomas Thacher took an insurance industry job in 1966, and Rockefeller replaced him with another young lawyer from his own staff, Richard E. Stewart. Stewart announced his resignation last weekend, to return to private life. No successor has been named.

Commerce — Keith S. McHugh retired in 1966. He was succeeded by his first deputy, Ronald Peterson, who died in 1968. Peterson's deputy, Neal L. Moylan, was promoted to the top job.

Housing — James L. Gaynor took a housing industry job in 1969 and his deputy, Charles J. Urstadt, moved up. Taxation and Finance — Joseph H. Murphy quit last year to return to private law practice. His deputy, Norman F. Gallman, has been acting commissioner.

Transportation — J. Burch McMoran returned last year. His successor was Theodore W. Parker, a retired Army general.

Public Service — James A. Lundy retired early this year amid a general overhaul of the Public Service Commission. He was replaced by Joseph C. Swidler, a former chairman of the Federal Power Commission.

In addition, Williams S. Hults, whose Motor Vehicle Bureau became a full-fledged department in 1960, resigned in 1966. His replacement was Vincent L. Tofany, who was Monroe County Republican chairman.

There have been changes also in two departments over which Rockefeller has no direct control — Education and Social Services.

Education — Commissioner James E. Allen Jr. departed in 1969 to become U.S. Education Commissioner, and the Board of Regents chose Allen's deputy, Ewald B. Nyquist, to succeed him. Social Service Commissioner Raymond W. Houston retired in 1962, and the Board of Social Welfare recruited George K. Wyman from California to take the post.

During the course of his 12 years in office, Rockefeller also has revamped his own staff several times. He is now on his third Secretary to the Governor, fourth Press Secretary and fifth legal counsel.

But Rockefeller himself just keeps rolling along.

Big-Time Crime Is Hit in Tender Spot

Something new has been added to good old Form 1040. On their 1970 income tax returns, American taxpayers will for the first time be required to declare whether they have bank accounts in foreign countries.

The new regulation is part of a drive to crack down on organized crime, which has infiltrated many phases of legitimate business.

American authorities have long charged that criminal syndicates use secret bank accounts in Switzerland, identified by numbers rather than by names, to cover up illegal activities.

Switzerland, in turn, has maintained that American accounts stems from a misunderstanding of its banking laws.

Swiss bankers, concerned about their reputations for integrity, point out that numbered accounts, like ordinary name accounts, are not exempt from scrutiny and prosecution when there is evidence that civil or criminal offenses have been committed. Swiss courts impose strict limits on secrecy when the public interest of any country is involved, provided that an alleged violation is punishable under Swiss law.

This has been a point of contention between the United States and Switzerland. Filing a fraudulent tax return is an offense in both countries, but evasion of taxes is not a criminal violation in Switzerland as it is in America.

Now, however, the Swiss have agreed, at least in principle, to make certain concessions to the United States to help in combating organized crime. Currently under negotiation is a treaty designed to expose and prosecute the Mafia and other underworld elements which have resorted to secret accounts to evade taxes.

Ironically, such schemes are abuses of a humanitarian measure the Swiss adopted in 1934 to save German Jews from the gas chambers.

Hitler had decreed the death penalty for Jews who sent their money out of Germany to escape confiscation, but some families managed to transfer their funds to Swiss banks. Gestapo agents tried to ferret them out by depositing small sums to the accounts of Jewish suspects. Acceptance by a bank teller was proof of guilt.

Switzerland balked at the Nazi giving Jewish accounts secret numbers. The government then fortified the protection by making it an offense to divulge such information. After World War II, the jealously guarded funds were returned to the Jews — or, more often, to their surviving heirs.

Humphrey Not Yet a 1972 Candidate, But...

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Hubert H. Humphrey, two years of political exile are ending—and, if the odds are long against another presidential nomination, the lure of the White House is still there.

"I am not seeking the presidency," says the man from Minnesota, who hasn't even been sworn in yet to his new Senate seat. "I have not renounced the possibility."

Today, according to Humphrey, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine is the clear Democratic leader, and President Nixon looks like a formidable opponent: "an incumbent president is hard to beat."

"But you don't judge what is going to happen in 1972 by what is happening in 1970," Humphrey said. "Who can tell what's going to happen?"

In fact, Humphrey says, he sees a possibility that President Nixon may not seek a second term, choosing the path of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"Of course, this is all conjecture, but I think the President has a sense of history, that if the domestic situation looks truly bad and his political prospects are not good, I have reason to believe he wouldn't run."

Humphrey, who swept to the Democratic presidential nomination two years ago, says while not very probable economic woes could do to Nixon what the Vietnam war did to Johnson—lead him to renounce a reelection bid.

"I think Mr. Nixon is a proud man... and if he thought that his candidacy would not be honored, if it looked bad, very bad, he might very well say 'Look, I've been president through difficult times. I've served my country. I'll step aside.'"

"That would be a whole new ball game," Humphrey obviously sees himself in the lineup.

He sits in the office he has kept in Washington for the past two years, and talks of politics, and the Senate, and the role of a titular party leader, and political fund raising, and the polls—and "that place."

The place is the White House, and when Humphrey mentions it, he does so with a wave over his right shoulder. His geography is perfect: the presidential mansion is three rainy blocks away, in just that direction.

At 59, Humphrey casts himself as a sort of political elder statesman, the man who has been the route and can advise others—and possibly, just possibly, run the race against himself.

"I really don't see much possibility of my being involved in presidential politics as a contender. I am not saying that the door is locked shut—I have no organization. I am not opening up any offices... I hope to be able to counsel some others."

"But let's say that it should come around to January next year, January 1972, and no one seems to be really out in front, there doesn't seem to be any co-leaders, well, then, I think we'll all take another look and see where we are."

"I want to be a good senator, that's what I really want to be, and I want to be a good leader in the party. And I think the best role that I play is when I don't have ambitions, when I'm not seeking position or title, and I'm not seeking position or title now..."

"The only one I missed was the top job, you see. So I don't want to spend my time trying to see if I can get another title, or to see if I can get to be a chairman, or to contend for an office in the Senate. I don't think I need to do that..."

Humphrey says what he will do is help shape Democratic policy, help raise Democratic money and promote Democratic unity.

He adds that he already has consulted with some of the obvious 1972 candidates. "I've been trying to, I don't want to say admonish, but to suggest to our Democratic leaders that the only way we can win in 1972, I think we can win, is some degree of unity in our party... people who listen, or even if they won't listen, I think that it looks good for the Democrats in 1972, now. But what it will look like a year from now is hard to say."

And what it will look like a year from now for Hubert H. Humphrey is hard to say, too.

His message to the party is clear: If the challenge of 1972 seems to call for a man who has been there before, who styles himself a tutor of Democrats, Hubert Humphrey is back in government, and very, very available for the assignment.

and Szczecin, that "steelhelmeted militiamen used incredible violence against civilians in rushes through town."

"The air was thick with tear gas and we heard shots fired," he reported. "Police and militiamen split up in groups of 10 to 15 and stormed through the town beating up all and sundry, men, women and children." The newspaper said Andersen reported he was going to be arrested and would be expelled from Poland sometime today.

In Stockholm, the Swedish Broadcasting Corp. said thousands of workers fought police and army troops in the streets of Szczecin Thursday. An SR reporter said he watched an armored car drive over a Polish woman and her daughter.

The Swedish radio reporter also said many demonstrators died in flames of the local Communist party headquarters. "They crawled up the facade, broke windows and started to throw out furniture and documents. Then flames engulfed the building and many of them never made it out. They apparently died in the flames," Western monitors said Szczecin Radio broadcast two appeals to the population Thursday night. Thye said "do not let youth and children go into the streets. Protect your youth and children from disaster." The broadcast said "hostile and firebrand elements, including outright bandits, have set public buildings on fire, looted shops and social property."

The rioting started in Gdansk and the surrounding area Monday as the result of a 20 per cent government hike in food prices. This was coupled with a shortage of meat and a 20 per cent increase in fuel prices. The riots spread and became more violent Tuesday.

SUNY Decides to Stay With Fee 'Solution'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — State University officials have decided to ride out the rest of the 1970-71 academic year with their "interim" solution to the controversy over the spending of student activity fees.

SUNY Chancellor Ernest L. Boyer had said in October that he would recommend "appropriate modifications" of the fee policy in December.

But the university's Board of Trustees, acting on a recommendation by Boyer, agreed Wednesday to continue the interim arrangement under which presidents of SUNY branches are to review proposed activity appropriations to see that they conform to trustee guidelines.

The mandated activity fees have come under fire in recent months. Two students at the State University center at Albany challenged spending at their campus in the courts. State Comptroller Arthur Levitt raised questions about spending practices at some SUNY campuses. And the Temporary State Commission to Study the Causes of Campus Unrest declared that the fees are an "irritant and underlying contributory cause to campus unrest" and therefore should not be mandated.

Boyer mentioned the comptroller's statements and the court action when he announced in October the "interim arrangement for the current semester."

The goal, the chancellor said, was to provide a mechanism under which expenditures of student funds could be approved through administrative review.

Yet, an executive committee of the trustees directed Boyer at that time to study the fee policies further and report back in December. The apparent intent was to arrive at a long-range, system-wide solution in time for the second semester of this academic year.

Instead, the board authorized continuation of the interim arrangement "in order to give a committee reviewing the board's student activity policy further opportunity to discuss permanent alternatives with students and administration at the campus level."

That committee, Boyer said Wednesday, would prepare recommendations to take effect during the 1971-72 academic year.

ANOTHER BREAKTHROUGH — The telephone pole, one of the last all-male working areas, has been conquered by 19-year-old Becky Newsom. Becky, from Monterey Park, Calif., is in training at Pacific Telephone where she will become an installer. She doesn't think of herself as a pioneer or crusader for women's rights. "I just wanted a job that would be a challenge," she said. "I wanted an outdoor job." (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Crucial Decision Looms for Egyptian President

BEIRUT (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is facing his most crucial decision since coming to power last October.

This is whether to renew the Suez Canal cease-fire which expires in eight weeks.

His decision could have far-reaching effects on the prospects for Middle East peace and could make or mar his image as leader of Egypt and of the Arab world.

Either course is loaded with danger. If Sadat chooses to renew the cease-fire, he will be blamed by Arab extremists for freezing the situation along the canal in Israel's favor and hardening the cease-fire lines into permanent frontiers. If he refuses to renew and hostilities resume he can be blamed for any military defeat Egypt may suffer.

Sadat Toughens Stance
Sadat recently has toughened his stance and some political observers say he already has made his decision to fight and be damned.

PRES. ANWAR SADAT

In a speech to canal frontline troops at the end of the holy month of Ramadan, Sadat announced he would not agree to an extension of the truce — which went into effect Aug. 7 — unless Israel produced a timetable for withdrawal of its troops from occupied Arab territory. Israel promptly rejected the idea and warned Egypt would fare worse if fighting starts again.

Military experts say if hostilities do resume, they are unlikely to be on a full-scale war basis. The situation is more likely to revert to pre-Aug. 7 conditions when there were daily Egyptian artillery barrages, occasional Egyptian trans-canal raids and air attacks and daily poundings by the Israeli air force of Egyptian positions.

Both Israel's newly built fortifications in Sinai and Egypt's air defense network of surface-to-air missiles along the canal will be put to the test.

May Be Some Impatience
There might be some impatience within the armed forces at the return to a past situation which seems to have no end in sight. But for the most part a resumption of hostilities in this fashion would do no damage to Sadat. What would hurt him drastically would be spectacular Israeli military successes.

One recent move by Sadat seems to indicate he is thinking in terms of a renewal of hostilities.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram announced Sadat was sending delegations to nearly all the world's major capitals, apparently to explain that Egypt has exhausted the possibilities of quiet diplomacy in its efforts to reach a peaceful settlement. This could be justification for refusing to renew the truce.

Prominent among the delegations will be one led by Vice President Aly Sabry who will consult with Soviet leaders on travel to Moscow. Sabry is known well for his close connections with the Soviets and his visit would be to consult with Soviet leaders on

Hong Kong Doctoral Student Feels Right at Home in Texas

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — It's a long way from West Texas to a different culture. He said Hong Kong, but one man who's made the journey says he feels right at home on the campus of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

David Cheong-Kan Chan, doctoral student at Texas Tech, came to the United States from China in 1961. He recently received his citizenship while pursuing a doctoral program in vocational rehabilitation administration.

"I came to Texas Tech in 1968," said Chan, "because I had heard that it was a young and rapidly growing institution and it had a real good program in psychology and education." Prior to entering Texas Tech, Chan had lived and worked in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, as a rehabilitation counselor in a mental health hospital.

When he first arrived in the United States, Chan spent three weeks in San Francisco "getting ting used to the new and very different culture." He said Chinatown was a big help in aiding his transition to the American way of life. "My biggest problem at the outset was an inability to understand the large amount of slang used by Americans," Chan said. "I had been taught English in a British school in Hong Kong, but had never really used it outside the classroom."

After his stay in California Chan enrolled at Rollins College in Winter Park, Fla. "A good friend of the family in Hong Kong had recommended this small, private school so that I could obtain the individual attention that most students do not receive at larger universities."

Chan graduated from Rollins with a bachelor of science degree in biology and anthropology. He then attended the University of Florida to receive

Environmental Defense Fund Becoming Public Defender

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

An organization housed in a 100-year-old farmhouse far out on New York's Long Island has swiftly become the public defender of the environmental movement.

It is called the Environmental Defense Fund and it is a non-profit organization of lawyers, scientists and citizens dedicated to the protection of environmental quality.

The work the fund is now doing, many observers believe, will probably shape much of the course of the fight to save the environment in the years ahead.

It is in the courts, the fund believes, that the citizen will be able to effectively challenge the giants of government and industry.

"The Environmental Defense Fund," it says, "believes that the judiciary is the one social institution already structured to provide the wise responses that may enable us to avert ecological disaster."

The EDF has recently sued the Montrose Chemical Corp. to compel it to stop discharging DDT into the Los Angeles sewer system, which empties into Santa Monica Bay and the Pacific Ocean.

The EDF is awaiting a hearing on its motion for a preliminary injunction to stop further construction by the Army Corps of Engineers of the Cross-Florida Barge Canal, which the EDF says will destroy the wild Ocklawaha River.

The EDF also has filed suit against the Army engineers to block construction of a dam on the last major free-flowing river in southern Arkansas, the Cosatot River.

The EDF has started legal action against the Federal Aviation Administration on the SST, the Agriculture Department and the Health, Education and Welfare Department on pesticides and a fire and eradication program and on the elimination of lead from auto exhausts.

The Environmental Defense Fund was born in the controversy over DDT, first on Long Island, then in Michigan and Wisconsin. It was incorporated in October, 1967, originally supported by the National Audubon Society, but until early this year was running without substantial funds.

"At the beginning of this year, EDF was a fragile organization," says Edward Lee Rogers, EDF general counsel and a former Justice Department lawyer. "We were at a low ebb financially."

Rogers, with executive director Roderick A. Cameron, and others, talked of becoming a general membership organization. To avoid becoming unmanageable, they decided members would not vote, there would be no fancy magazine.

"We said we'd tell the members we'll give them what they want—action, in the courts," Rogers says.

The turning point came when Cameron decided to spend about $5,000 of the organization's total remaining assets of $23,000 on an advertisement in the New York Times on Sunday, March 29, headlined "Is Mother's Milk Fit for Human Consumption?" It referred to the amount of DDT in the human body.

The ad appealed for members, starting at $10 for a basic membership. It produced $7,000, a profit, and the EDF turned to a direct mail campaign and now has 10,000 members, a stable financial base and a chance at major foundation support.

EDF has enough money to continue operating for about four months if money stopped coming in—it continues to come in—and hopes to maintain that kind of financial backlog.

"We're not trying to maintain a big kitty," Rogers says. "We're not trying to maintain a big kitty."

EDF has 23 cases in some phase of prosecution throughout the country and is looking into several others, Rogers says. EDF chooses its spots carefully: "We're militants, but we're not zealots."

Among those on the EDF board of trustees are Dr. Charles F. Wurster, a specialist on pesticides at the State University of New York at Stony Brook; former Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall, and a new member Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger, recently defeated in a bid for the U.S. Senate from New York.

A major aspect of the work the EDF is doing concerns the setting of precedents in environmental law, while at the same time solving specific environmental problems.

Area Free Of Deaths In Hunting

MIDDLETOWN

Major J. W. Monahan, Troop Commander, Troop F, Middletown, today reported that during the 1970 hunting season which began on Oct. 1 and ended on Dec. 2, members of the Troop investigated 17 personal injury hunting accidents in which 18 persons were injured. Fortunately, Major Monahan continued, there were no fatal hunting accidents this year.

As in the past, State Police personnel worked with game protectors from the Conservation Department, both in responding to complaints concerning possible violations and at various road check locations that were specifically established during the deer season to detect any conservation violations.

During the season members of Troop F, in cooperation with Conservation Department officials, handled 149 violations of law. In addition investigations were jointly conducted in 17 instances of lost hunters. In each case the lost subjects were either located or found their way out of the woods alone.

Major Monahan again reminds hunters that they should advise relatives or friends of specific information as to their intended hunting area. In the event of their becoming lost, injured or in some other difficulty, such information saves countless hours of searching generalized areas, thereby increasing the possibility of saving a life. This past season, 23 members of the State Police expended 50 man hours searching for lost hunters.

The most prominent criminal violation detected was again having a loaded gun in a motor vehicle of which there were 39 instances. This practice is not only illegal but it is also extremely dangerous due to a possible accidental discharge of the weapon while entering or leaving the vehicle.

Other violations frequently detected were: False information on license application, trespassing, illegal possession of deer, untagged deer, and hunting without a license.

Not included in the foregoing are 131 general complaints investigated by the State Police concerning trespassing, deer jacking, illegal shooting, shooting within 500 feet of a building, hunting after hours and several others. These cases were either closed by investigation or as unfounded.

A detailed breakdown in Ulster and Greene counties follows:

Ulster — total arrests 43 — six each for false information on license application, loaded firearm in vehicle and illegal transportation of deer; failure to fill out deer tag and taking illegal deer, five each; trespassing, 4; Failure to display tag on back, untagged taking of doe and unplugged shotgun, 2 each; illegal possession of doe, hunting without a license and improper tag, one each; investigations of lost hunters, three, all of whom were found safe; hunters injured in accidents, 4.

Greene — total arrests 30 — loaded firearms in vehicle, 11; untagged deer, hunting without a license, shooting within 500 feet of building, unplugged shotgun, shooting across road, one each; investigations of four lost hunters all found safe, and three personal injury accidents.

Forty-eight arrests were recorded in Sullivan County, 16 in Orange County and 12 in Rockland County.

Bus Trip To Middletown Is Advanced

KINGSTON Due to the Hanukkah and Christmas holidays, the bus from Ulster County to Middletown State Hospital will run one week earlier than usual, and will operate on Sunday.

Departure times are: The Park Diner, Kingston, 11:45 a.m.; The Elms, Rosendale, 12 noon; The Grand Union, North Chestnut Street, New Paltz, 12:10 p.m. The bus arrives at the hospital at approximately 1:30 p.m. and leaves there at 4 p.m.

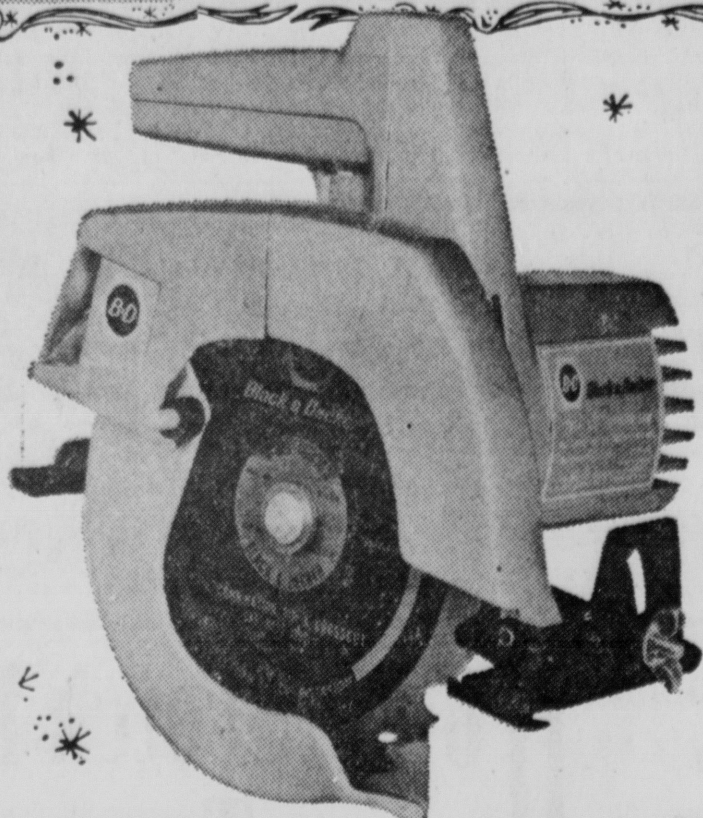

The service is sponsored by the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, a Community Chest agency, for the convenience of those wishing to visit a patient. A nominal charge is made, but anyone who would have difficulty in paying this is asked to contact the association office in advance: 27 East O'Reilly Street, Kingston 12401, open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 to 4 o'clock.

Maintaining contact with relatives and friends is a very important factor in the recovery from mental illness. The Ulster County Association for Mental Health urges all who can to take advantage of this convenient transportation to the hospital, which operates once a month. Visits at holiday times are even more important, Diana M. Geiger, executive secretary, said.

PLATES TELL STORY — Rev. Father Charles K. Trehwella of Portland, Ore., points to his new license plates which signify "PADRE". Rev. Trehwella feels that being a minister isn't an 8-5 job and with his new plates he will be on call 24-hours a day. He said, "It's like on open invitation for anyone on highways to pull me over in time of need." The reverend is director of pastoral services at Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Federal Advisory Service Tabbed $75 Million Waste

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee estimated today the federal government spends $75 million a year supporting 3,200 advisory panels—many of which it said are meaningless, obsolete or performing duplicate jobs.

While declaring proper use of such committees is necessary and helpful, the Government Operations Committee deplored inactive ones that are tucked away in bureaucratic obscurity accomplishing nothing.

The report said there are committees to advise advisory committees, committees with out appointees, committees with appointed members which do not meet, committees with staffs which do not meet, and committees which go on forever.

Some committees exist in name only, the congressmen said, new members are appointed to expired boards, many panels waste time getting started, some committees cover territory already explored by a previous board, and often conclusions and recommendations are flatly ignored by the people who appoint panels.

The panel proliferation began during George Washington's administration, the House group said, and now has reached the point where no one really knows the extent of manpower being consumed—and there is no way to effectively evaluate the finished product.

In the report climaxing an 18-month review the House panel said was the first comprehensive look at the situation, the committee stated presidential panels—those with at least one member picked by the White House—"generally lack adequate administrative guidelines and management control."

The average Cabinet member serves on about 30 interagency committees—which, the House group said, makes him no more than a token representative.

The executive branch occasionally goes on a "committee-killing spree of short duration," the House group said.

No Pomp for The Rock Despite Circumstances

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI)—Governor Rockefeller will formally start his fourth term with a simple inauguration ceremony New Year's Day.

Actually, Rockefeller will be sworn in during a private session New Year's Eve so the state will not be without a chief executive between midnight on Dec. 31 and the official ceremony.

The Assembly chamber will be the scene of the inauguration presided over by Secretary of State John Lomenzo. The formal oath of office will be administered by Stanley Fuld, chief judge of the Court of Appeals.

Expected to attend the formal ceremonies are members of the legislature, judges of the Court of Appeals, members of the Board of Regents, a military guard and other dignitaries.

After the oath, Rockefeller will deliver his inaugural address.

During the ceremonies, a state military unit will fire a 19-gun salute in a park adjacent to the Capitol.

and
BRUCE E. KAUFMAN

MIDDLETOWN
High praise and commendation has come from Major John W. Monahan, commanding officer of Troop F of the State Police, for the outstanding police work and accomplishments of retiring veteran Senior BCI Investigator Edward P. Shannon.

Shannon has been named director of security at the State University College at New Paltz by Dr. John J. Neumaier, president of the college. Shannon will assume the $12,000 per year post on Jan. 1, 1971, succeeding John B. Tenaglia, who will assume another position in the administration of the college.

Major Monahan said "Investigator Shannon is one of the most capable police investigators produced by the New York State Police. He has been in charge of the BCI unit at the Kingston Zone Headquarters for many years during which time he was responsible for a large number of highly intensive investigations of a major nature.

"His investigative efforts in 1961 resulted in the apprehension of the kidnaper of a 12-year-old girl in Ulster County," Major Monahan continued. "Investigator Shannon conducted an investigation which resulted in the apprehension of 14 notorious individuals who were part of a large burglary ring responsible for operating out of Ulster County and the entire lower portion of New York State.

"Those arrests resulted in the recovery of stolen property worth many thousands of dollars," Monahan noted. "Investigator Shannon was directly responsible for the solution of so many crimes that it is difficult to narrate them all.

"He has been commended by many outstanding figures for his outstanding performance of duty, including Superintendent William E. Kirwan," the major said.

"Not only is Senior Investigator Shannon an excellent police officer," Monahan continued, "but he is a highly capable administrator. He is known for his ability to get things done. He will be sorely missed by the entire division of the New York State Police including myself."

Shannon's appointment to the high post at the New Paltz college was formally announced by the administration in a recent statement.

After being contacted by The Daily Freeman, Dr. Neumaier announced that Shannon will take over his new post on Jan. 1.

Commenting on the appointment Dr. Neumaier said that "it is very important that a college security director be a man who commands the respect of community leaders, the admiration of his fellow police officers, and the friendship of people of all ages, including youth."

Shannon, who is retiring from the New York State Police, has been serving as a unit coordinator for the 133-man Kingston unit of Troop F, which has headquarters in Middletown.

Shannon's police career also includes special training in photography, civil defense, narcotics, and other special courses in command leadership and investigation methods and administration.

He is married and has six children and two grandchildren. Two of his sons are veterans of the war in Southeast Asia and another is still serving there in the United States Navy. Shannon's three youngest children attend Rondout public schools.

Shannon and his family reside in Kerhonkson.

$115,250 Aids Area Culture

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
Announcement of $115,250 in funds for cultural betterment of Ulster and Dutchess Counties, designated by the New York State Council on the Arts has been announced by Assemblyman H. Clark Bell and State Sen. Jay P. Rolison.

Eight organizations and schools in Ulster County will receive $43,800 and five in Dutchess County will be funded $71,450 with the Huguenot Historical Society, Vassar College and Rondout Valley Central Schools benefitting.

As previously reported, the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra and the Woodstock Artist's Association are also being aided through council funds.

Assemblyman Bell, commenting on Ulster County's share of the $18 million appropriated by the Legislature last spring for distribution by the council, said that from a musical, historical and cultural point of view the aid will enrich the lives of Hudson Valley residents, making them fuller and more rewarding.

Pointing to the recent archaeological find in Kingston, unearthing the Old Stockade in Kingston, Bell said it was brought about by assistance from the Council on the Arts.

The assemblyman said he was especially pleased that the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra has been preserved through efforts of the Council and is continuing to bring the finest musical works in the Hudson Valley.

Sen. Rolison speaking of the orchestra's being funded $70,000 under Aid to Cultural Organizations for concerts and residencies in cooperation with Associated Colleges of the Mid-Hudson area said he was pleased that the orchestra is working in cooperation with Mid-Hudson Colleges, bringing "in-house performances" to the campuses.

He also expressed great pleasure that Wappinger Central Schools are also receiving financial aid for the holding of poetry readings. Wappingers will receive $200 and Rondout, $150 for six poetry readings and workshops by Dick Louis.

The senator said he feels "we should be doing more of this for the schools... this is an important first step."

Of the aid to Cultural Organizations funds, about 12 per cent of the groups funded to date are in the Hudson Region.

Allotments in Ulster County are as follows: Friends of Historic Kingston for consultant services and a city ordinance for design standards, $300; Huguenot Historical Society of New Paltz for an arts and crafts program and administration, $18,800.

For the State University College at New Paltz, Department of Theatre Arts for readings and seminars by Theodore Weiss, $50 and for mime performances in high schools, $2,000.

In Saugerties, for Concertaid Inc., a performance of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, $800. In Stone Ridge for Rondout Valley Central School, $150 for poetry readings.

In Woodstock, Maverick Concerts for chamber music concerts, $2,500; the Turnau Opera Association, $5,200 for children's productions in Boiceville, Newburgh and Woodstock. Also, Woodstock Artists Association for education programs and administration, $14,000.

In Dutchess County, in addition to the $70,000 for the Philharmonic, there will be $750 for the Union Street Performing Arts Center, Poughkeepsie, for a performance of Olatunji (total cost of performance $1,500).

Also in Poughkeepsie, the Neighborhood Advisory Commit-

Kurland Listed as Biographee

STONE RIDGE
Associate Professor Robert A. Kurland, chairman of the Department of Public Service at Ulster County Community College, has been listed as a biographee in the sixth edition of the "Dictionary of International Biography" just published and released in London, England.

Kurland's biographical sketch lists him as "Educator, Social Worker." It traces his professional appointments in the social work and educational fields, through his current appointment as an associate professor at U.C.C.C. and his private social work practice in Kingston.

A notation indicates that complete biographical material on Mr. Kurland has been deposited for permanent reference in the Manchester Central Reference Library, England.

Professor Kurland's biography has been previously published in the 10th, 11th, and 12th editions of the Marquis "Who's Who in the East."

Kingston SDA Sets Combined Event Saturday

KINGSTON
A combined farewell and welcome get-together is planned Saturday 1:30 p.m. at the Kingston Seventh Day Adventist Church, 24 West Union Street.

The luncheon event will honor the Rev. Gilbert Foster and his wife who have served the church during its formative period. The Rev. Mr. Foster will assume a pastorate in Poughkeepsie.

The program also will welcome the new pastor, the Rev. Herbert E. Henley and his family who have just moved to the Kingston area.

The Sabbath schedule at the church this week will include Sabbath school Saturday 9:30 a.m. and church services at 11 a.m. Young people will meet 3:30 p.m. Saturday, with weekday services at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Red Hook Benefit for Wounded GI

RED HOOK
Bruce Teator was riding in a bus near Bangkok, Thailand, last summer with numerous Army buddies when it collided with a railroad train, killing several of the men and seriously injuring others.

Bruce is now in the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Hospital near Peekskill with a cast from his feet to his neck, and he is blind.

The 21-year-old Red Hook man has been in the cast for many months. Doctors have been unable to give him rehabilitative therapy because of the cast.

And the doctors have not held out much hope that Bruce will recover from his blindness. He has a very difficult future and readjustment period ahead of him.

The Red Hook Lions Club will sponsor a benefit basketball night at the Red Hook High School Gym at 7:30 p.m., Dec. 29.

The proceeds from this affair will be used somehow for Bruce Teator Jr.

Spokesmen for the Lions Club felt there were many people who might like to do something for the local man to make his adjustment a little bit easier.

There will be two games. The Alumni of Red Hook will play teams from both Pine Plains and Rhinebeck.

Advance sale of tickets will be available at many local stores and from organizations throughout the community, or members of the Red Hook Lions Club may be contacted. Prices are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Town Supervisor Warren Simmons may be contacted for further information, or Ralph Pulver or Pete Lawson.

State Regents Announces Drug Education Plan

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Board of Regents announced today a proposed drug-education program for 1971-72 at a cost of $2.1 million.

The regents, governing body of all education in New York, outlined their proposal in a position paper on drug education.

The program would provide $400,000 to local school districts, particularly those that demonstrate "new and unique teaching techniques" and involve students in their projects to a considerable degree.

In addition, there would be a state-operated computer program to furnish school districts with up-to-date information. This part of the over-all program would cost $250,000.

The balance of the funds would be used for training teachers, preparing instructional materials and continuing the volunteer program under which college students work with high school pupils to try to deter them from using drugs.

Take It From Santa

More Frost at Stores Than at the North Pole

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cold at the North Pole
Take it from this "Santa Claus." There is more of a frost in the toy section of the nearest department store.

Perhaps suffering from sustained exposure to the chill in his "Magic Chair," Santa called in sick one day last week. And while Mrs. Claus presumably filled the old man with vitamin C, this reporter was offered — and jumped at — the chance to fill Santa's beard for an afternoon.

Thanks mostly to his elves on Madison Ave., the attitude behind the camera that snaps the $2 photos of Santa and his visitors is one of cold business.

For kids the trip to see Santa is like the descent of out of town buyers on the showing of Winnie Winkle's fall line. For Santa, well... he has been subtly transformed into the catalyst for retailing's coldest chemical process — Sell. Baby. Sell!

In case you have not been a child in a few years, they are different these days. They look something like they used to, but inside they are different.

For one thing, they have never heard of Erector Sets. And very few are interested in electric trains.

The 300 to 400 kids Santa's stand-in got to talk to — or, more accurately, listen to — showed a few of the kind of doubts their mothers are experiencing between the mid and the mini.

The youngsters come to visit desirous with full knowledge that, if Santa Claus cannot pull it out of his own bag — (Yes, some still believe) — he probably can swing it from momma's.

But, most glaringly, kids just do not ask for "dolls" or "a bike" any more. They order by brand name and trademark.

And the range of their desires encompasses everything that has ever interrupted a rerun of the Dick Van Dyke Show.

A few children did ask for "some games" and "a painting easel," but far more common were requests like, "Sur-Shot...Ad Infinitum" and "Art & Matic" and the "Peanuts Drawing Kit".

War toys, guns and even cowboy paraphernalia apparently are dirty words with the young.

Mohawk Strike: See No Chance Of Yule Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hopes of a settlement before Christmas of the pilots strike against Mohawk Airlines have been dashed.

Contract talks were recessed Thursday until Dec. 28 as the National Mediation Board reported "lack of significant progress."

Mohawk, which says it has lost millions of dollars in the past two years, was also shut down for Thanksgiving, another of its peak demand periods.

The strike by 396 pilots began Nov. 12 and the airline, based in Utica, N. Y., laid off 2,500 of its employees for the duration.

In fact, the merry-go-round at 25 cents a ride, quickly died. There was very little to suggest that the scandalizing of and the $2 photos appeared to Santa Claus was either overt or nefarious. British Public Against

1971 Could Be Make or Break Year for Common Market

BRUSSELS (UPI)—European unity was back in vogue during 1970 for the six nations of the Common Market. The New Year should determine once and for all whether or not it will work.

The Common Market, the rock on which its founders hoped to build a United States of Europe, had a good year. It completed a trading union among its six members, launched programs for economic monetary and political integration, and reopened its doors for other west European nations to join.

Britain, twice barred from the market by France in 1963 and 1967, applied again for full membership. So did Ireland, Norway and Denmark. Austria, Switzerland, Sweden, Finland, Portugal and Iceland are seeking special arrangements with the market which would allow them to take part in its economic life without the political implications.

Britain and the marketeers hope to consummate negotiations on British entry by the end of 1971. But although Britain's three main political parties are firmly committed to joining the market, latest opinion polls show only 16 per cent of the British public want in.

If this third attempt to get Britain into the market fails it would be a crushing blow to plans for a United Europe with an equal voice in world affairs beside America and the Soviet Union.

Britain would be unlikely to try again. Ireland, Norway and Denmark have said they will not join without the British.

The Common Market—West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg—could survive as a customs union, but as the intended nucleus of a United States of Europe, with political, economic and perhaps military union, it would wither.

Support for the Common Market in the United States, which until now has been willing to pay the price of backing an economic rival because it wants a strong Europe, would probably cool considerably if the enlargement talks collapse.

University President's Wife Plans to Be Active on and Off the Stanford Campus
 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The wife of the new president of Stanford University has no intention of sitting back and luxuriating in her prestigious new role.
 "Both of us see an active role for me," Elizabeth Schaffler Lyman said recently of herself and her husband, Ricard. Mrs. Lyman believes she can help her husband by "creating a feeling of rapport" among diverse elements in the university community.

 She also expects to keep her hand in activities to which she's long been committed — namely, the Mid-Peninsula Citizens for Fair Housing, the Fair Housing Task Force of the Stanford-Mid-Peninsula Urban Coalition and employment opportunities and continuing education for women.
 "A tall order," the 5-foot-10½-inch mother of four said with a hearty laugh in a telephone interview. "It will demand a lot of flexibility, not only on my part but for my children," she said.
 Richard and Elizabeth Lyman, both from the East Coast, met and married 23 years ago while both were undergraduates at Swarthmore College. "He was one of these glamorous returning veterans," she said.
 Before the birth of their first child, Mrs. Lyman taught crafts in lower school. Today at the "splendid age" of 45, Mrs. Lyman keeps up an interest in arts and crafts and has gained a reputation for her knitting.
 Elizabeth Lyman feels strongly that she can do her part to make her husband's job more effective.

Retired Dentist 'Sounds' Alarm

Indoor Plants Help Beat Pollution

Plants can help beat pollution in the home, and it may be a good time to prepare the indoors for our survival—we'll be spending more time there in the future, says George Milstein, a retired dentist, who is involved in the study of environmental sounds and plants.

We forget that plants need the carbon dioxide that we exhale and that we need the oxygen plants exhale, he points out. This natural combination assists the psychological, emotional and physiological well-being of humans and the continuing processes of plant life.

But there won't be much plant life left outdoors, if we continue to pour concrete over it, Milstein explains. Forest fires are wiping out plants and even in the great redwood forest, giant Sequoias, thousands of years old are killed by automobile pollution.

"The environment we make indoors for plants—light, humidity, ventilation, proper temperature—is an ideal environment for man," he says.

Dr. Milstein's interest in plants began as a hobby when he tried to trace the origin of a tropical plant given him by a patient. It led him to botanists at botanical gardens and to the Smithsonian Institution and to the study of the effects of sonic sounds on plant growth.

At the University of Ottawa, one of the first to conduct such experiments, a faster growth of corn and wheat has been made possible when vibratory effects were applied to seeds, Milstein explains. And in India, a botanist has been conducting experiments concerning effective sound vibration on flowers, claiming a 60 per cent increase in plant growth. Research is being conducted in many areas of the United States.

"The range used in such experiments is almost ultra-sonic, about 11,000 cycles, slightly above human hearing. Sound need not be heard. It may be felt as when a jet plane breaks the sound barrier."

And that is one snag in trying to interest farmers and others in the plant growth experiments—they can't see it or touch it.

Milstein and his group—the Environmental Sound Control—introduced a recording of sonic vibrations, trying to interest homemakers to use it as an adjunct of light to encourage the growth of house plants. In one experiment with identical plants, one exposed to sound grew a two-year growth in five months, he says.

The ultimate idea is not to make flowers grow, but to increase the food crops of the world. The Pickwick International Recording, "Music To Grow Plants By" is available to florists and department stores. If homemakers are persuaded it works it may be easier to interest farmers and research foundations, he says.

"The record begins with the whining vibration of sonics, but tone is added so people may enjoy it. We do not endorse gimmicky theories that certain music can help the growth of plants as some people would have us believe or that rock and roll music will wither a plant. And there are other strange theories—that praying and singing to plants will help them grow. If these things work, it may be because the plant caretaker is spending a great deal of time caring for the plant as he observes the oddities."

Of the 400 plants in his home, some are outdoor plants. The challenge was inspired by the thought that many outdoor plants will need to be rescued before they perish.

People can be affected by sounds. Divorces, sickness, fights are said to be more usual in noisy areas than in tranquil atmosphere, he explains.

In my dental work, many patients preferred the pain of a tooth being drilled rather than the noise of the pain-deadening instrument."

Outdoor Lights Need Special Care

Whether you have your Christmas decorations up already or you are waiting until the last minute, remember to exercise a little care so that all the charm and color of holiday lights are not marred by dangerous overloading, short circuits or other hazards.

Strings of lights used in previous years should be checked over carefully. Look for signs of wear in the insulation, for breaks and for loose connections. Plug in each string and then test the cord by bending and moving it. Hidden breaks or faulty connections will show up by causing the lights to flicker.

This may seem obvious—but make certain that every socket has a bulb in it. Empty sockets become a hazard once the string is plugged in.

If you plan to decorate the outside of your house or yard use only light strings and extension cords designed for outdoor use. The sockets on outdoor light strings have gaskets around the base of each bulb to keep out moisture. Cords are generally heavier, will withstand extremes in temperatures and have weatherproof connections.

When you make connections outdoors wrap the connection with plastic electrical tape to keep out moisture. The tape also will keep the connections from pulling apart.

If you are fastening strings of lights to the house do not hang the wire directly on hooks or nails. Suspend the wire by using tape or string to prevent the wire from rubbing against the hooks. With constant movement in the wind, insulation will be worn away if you don't do this.

Outdoor lights should be plugged into weatherproof outlets. If you don't have these, plug into an outdoor light fixture by taking out the bulb and replacing it with an adapter.

If you must run an extension indoors choose the garage first, then the basement, then the living area. Remember, you cannot close a window down tight on an electric cord without damaging it. Better to drill a hole through a narrow board in the window, running the wire through the hole.

Indoors or out, be careful not to run too many lights off a single circuit. The average 15-amp circuit can carry a load of about 1,800 watts. A 20-amp circuit can handle about 2,400 watts, if divided through two or more outlets.

Multiply the number of bulbs by the watts for each and you will know if you are exceeding the load limit. (Don't forget the include other lights on the same circuit.) The small bulb used in most strings draws about 6 1/2 watts. If you are using floodlights or spotlights remember that each draws 150 watts.

Be Safe With Christmas Tree

Select a cut Christmas tree early when the choice is wide. Apply a freshness test before you buy it. With proper care the tree can be kept fresh until Christmas.

According to R. A. Bartlett, president of the F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company to determine its freshness, do this: Thump the butt hard on the ground. If needles shower down, it's a sign of dryness. Next pull the needles. If they have good resistance, the tree is relatively fresh.

Rub a finger across the butt. If it is sticky with resin, this, too is a sign of freshness. Spread lower branches. If they are springy and sturdy, they will hold ornaments well. Odor or fragrance is another mark of freshness. Avoid a Christmas tree with browned patches of needles.

Taken home, the tree should be given this care: First, cut a diagonal slice an inch thick from the butt and peel back the bark another inch. Place the tree in a bucket of cold water. Keep the tree in a garage, porch or other cool place until you're ready to bring it indoors. Add water to the container periodically. Coating the needles with an anti-wilt spray compound will prevent needles drying out and falling. Sprinkling the needles daily with water will help reduce transpiration.

Preference in Christmas trees varies. Balsam and Douglas fir which retain needles two to three weeks indoors are high in favor. In recent years, Scotch pine because of its soft needles has become popular. Spruce is also used as an indoor tree, but it has a tendency to shed needles in a warm room. Hemlock and juniper are used chiefly as Christmas greens. A Norway spruce makes an ideal outdoor community Christmas tree. Any tree brought indoors is thirsty. A good size tree may absorb as much as a quart of water a day.

Aftereffects of Marijuana: Could Be Up to Eight Days

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government researchers said today marijuana lingers in the human body for more than eight days—a fact that may explain why some pot users require smaller and smaller doses to get high.

The study could spark new debate on the relative effects of marijuana and alcohol, since alcohol generally disappears from the blood within 12 hours after ingestion. Heroin leaves the system in about the same amount of time, cocaine somewhat more quickly.

The study by Dr. Julius Axelrod and his colleagues at the National Institute of Mental Health was published today in the weekly Journal Science. Axelrod, 58, shared the 1970 Nobel Prize for medicine for his research on the biochemistry of the nervous system.

Using two female and one male volunteers, aged 18 to 22, who had no previous experience with marijuana, the scientists studied what the human body does with the component of marijuana that is most active in producing its physical effects—rapid heart beat, reddening of the eyes, drowsiness, hunger and difficulty in coordination.

Highly technical and cautionary, the report concluded that this compound, Delta-9-THC, and the chemical spinoffs or metabolites it produces in the body "persist in humans for long periods." It indicated they accumulate in tissues with chronic use.

ZONTA of Kingston, Ulster County's only woman's service organization, aided the Toys for Tots program last night by wrapping and preparing the items for Christmas giving. Among those on hand for the activities were (L-R) Molly Sholtzberger, captain of the Salvation Army in Kingston; Kay Sullivan, assistant treasurer of the Kingston Savings Bank; Mary Scaffidi, real estate broker; Mickey I. Duncan, owner and director of Hidden Valley Recreation Center; and Mrs. Walter Williams, owner, Williams Lake Hotel. Zonta International is a service organization of executive women in business and professions who, as leaders in their Communities, devote themselves to civic and social welfare. Colleen R. Crespi, assistant vice president of the Ulster County Savings Bank, is now president of Zonta of Kingston. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Special Program Planned at UCCC

The Oral Interpretation class of Ulster County Community College will present a program of Readers Theatre entitled, "The Sound of Gray", on Tuesday, Dec. 22.

According to Mrs. Rhoda R. Mones, chairman of the Speech Department, the public is welcome to attend the performance at 1:45 p.m. in Room 420 of the John Burroughs Building.

Featured in this program, which centers on the theme of alienation, will be Raymond Davis, Susan DeStefano, James Di Giovanni, Lelia Ford, Edward Miller, Michelle Scherer, and Marcia Zwilling.

Readers Theatre can be defined as a group activity involving the re-creation of literature. Because it makes use not only of plays but also of poetry, essay, song, and other forms of narrative communication, and because it requires no formal staging, it has become a popular and flexible method of oral interpretation.

"The Sound of Gray" is essentially an original program. The oral interpretation students brought together pieces of material from many sources, edited, amplified, pieced them together, and the result is a unique presentation — reflective of the special concerns of the students — not necessarily a new theme, but a theme presented in a new way . . .

ADVENT WREATH — The Tri-Parish Center for Christian Development of Immaculate Conception School, Kingston, continues during this season of Advent leading to the celebration of a happy, holy Christmas. Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Did you know that finely chopped chives added to biscuit dough makes delicious biscuits to serve with meat or poultry dishes?

Reader

Dear Heloise:

This comes from a working mother.

We all leave for school at the same time, and at the last minute each morning one child will yell, "I need money for lunch," and another will say, "I need 10 cents for Scouts," or gym shorts, etc.

Finally, I bought a magnet and attached it to my refrigerator along with a small piece of paper.

Now when each child comes home from school, he jots down his own needs and I can take care of them in the evening instead of one minute before we leave in the morning.

Busy Mother

Why not use envelopes . . . one for each child with his or her name on it?

Leave the flaps open and put your magnet on top of the flap. This gives you a pocket, making it easy to slip a dime, quarter (and let's hope it's not a dollar) into the envelope, so that the money is all divided ahead of time for each child.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: For those who like grits and cheese . . . Just try putting them together!

After cooking the grits, grate cheese on top and let it melt all through the grits. Talk about a state treat!

Betty

Letter of Laughter

Dear Heloise: Can you help me revive a 15-year-old fruit cake?

Desperate

Dear Heloise: If you hate to cook for one or two . . . don't. Cook for four or more and make several TV dinners with what you don't need.

Share them with older people in your neighborhood who live alone. They'll eat better and love you for it.

MRS. S.M.K.

Hints for Selecting Christmas Toys for Children

For parents and grandparents, much of the happiness of Christmas morning is the excitement of youngsters opening their gifts. The squeals of delight that accompany the unwrapping of each present are a rich reward for family Santas who spent hours selecting the just-right toy.

For the preschooler himself, the rewards go far beyond the holiday morning, for well-chosen toys help him learn while playing throughout the year.

To make sure that your child has an especially Merry Christmas — and play-tools that give him a year-round creative environment for play—Playskool Research makes these suggestions for selecting toys:

● Choose toys in bright primary colors (red, blue, yellow, green), which are also pleasant to the touch and sight. Wood, for example, has "warmth," solid feel and texture that are satisfying to the preschooler.

● Toys should be portable enough to satisfy the child's desire to move and carry but neither the toys themselves nor their parts should be so small that they defy a small hand to work them.

● Toys should be durable and soundly constructed so that they withstand a child's vigorous use. They should be safe, with well-finished edges and non-toxic paints.

● Youngsters like to see how a toy works, to satisfy their curiosity about what makes it go. If the toy is designed to be taken apart, it should be easy for the child to put it together again.

● Preschoolers need — and prefer—toys such as blocks, wagons, pounding benches, and disc stacks which can be "imagined into" many different play situations, rather than toys which merely recreate the adult world in miniature or toys which are electrically operated.

● The preschool child needs a variety of playtools. His toy "wardrobe" should encourage the development of all of his senses, permitting him to exercise his skills, muscles, emotions, and imagination.

Parents can know best the kinds of toys their preschoolers most enjoys by watching him at play. When shopping be sure that you are buying a toy which is suitable for the child's age and stage of development so that he is neither frustrated nor bored by it.

Correction For Yule Fudge

A recipe for an old fashioned holiday treat — Divinity Fudge — carried on the Woman's Pages of The Freeman Wednesday, Dec. 16 was incomplete. The recipe calls for water but a line was dropped and the amount did not appear. For those who called, correct amount of water to be used in the recipe is one-half cup. The Divinity Fudge recipe was made available through Cecily Brownstone of the Associated Press. She said it was an easy version of the fudge.

The Woman's Department apologizes for any inconvenience this omission may have caused any reader interested in making the Divinity Fudge for Christmas.

Mrs. Adele Longendyke, chairman of a gala art show given last night at the Governor Clinton Hotel for the benefit of the Ulster County Community Chest, told The Freeman one of the highlights of the program was the appearance of Miss Bryarly Lehmann, local concert vocalist. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Jane Tonnesen, concert pianist.

Miss Lehmann, who is 20 years old and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Frank Lehmann of Kingston, is a very talented young woman. Not only is she a fine vocalist, but she is considered one of the most outstanding young pilots in the country. When she was 17 years old she received her pilot license and was reported to be the youngest pilot at the time anywhere in the United States. She is the youngest pilot known to own and fly a Beachcraft Bonanza and is a charter member of one of the oldest all woman's flying groups in the world, The 99's. Miss Lehmann belongs to the Hudson Valley group.

At the age of 19, Miss Lehmann was the youngest flyer to enter the "Angel Derby," an all woman's international air race. She placed 43rd out of 63. She has been flying since she was 16 years of age.

Right now, in addition to her singing and flying, Miss Lehmann is learning the construction business under the direction of her father who is president of the A. F. Lehmann Construction Company. Someday Miss Lehmann will be in the same position. Her current duty is serving as project manager of the Ulster County Infirmary construction.

The ambitious Miss Lehmann also plans to attend a college specializing in music and hopes to find time to enter the 1971 Angel Derby. This time she expects to win.

Soloist Entertains at Art Show

CONCERT SOLOIST for the Ulster County Community Chest benefit show held last night at the Governor Clinton Hotel was Miss Bryarly Lehmann, local soloist and outstanding airpilot. Pictured in her Beachcraft Bonanza, she is a charter member of the 99's, the Hudson Valley Chapter of an all woman's flying organization. Now 20, Miss Lehmann was the youngest pilot in the country with a flying license at the tender age of 17. She has been flying since age 16.

Prior to the business meeting, coffee and dessert were served by the program committee, the Mmes. John Pope and DeWitt Wells, assisted by the hostess.

A reading entitled "A Thought for Christmas" was presented. A tribute was read also in memory of the late Frances Osterhout.

After the business meeting, gifts were distributed. A social hour took place with members singing Christmas carols, accompanied by William Soper at the organ. Members joined in playing cards and various games.

Cantata Scheduled Sunday

"NIGHT OF MIRACLES," a cantata by John Petersen, will be presented by the choirs of First Baptist Church and Trinity United Methodist Church at Trinity United Methodist Church on Sunday, Dec. 20, at 2:30 p. m. Among those participating will be (L-R) Mrs. Bruce P. Palen, Mrs. William H. Williams, Mrs. James P. Veatch, and Mrs. Arthur T. Pederson, organist and choir director. Other soloists include Miss Dale Matson, Kevin Kirk, B. Edson Decker, Don Boomhower, William Arensman. The Rev. James Veatch will be narrator. After the musical, the church-school Christmas party will take place. The public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served. (Freeman photo by Haines).

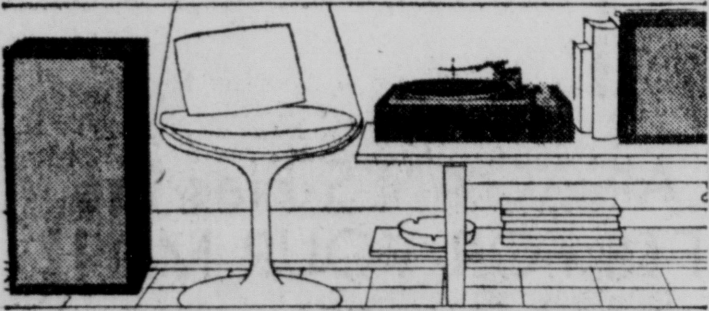

Santa Claus will land his helicopter on Saturday, Dec. 19, at 10 a.m.

The Standard

THE KLH® Model Twenty is the stereo music system against which all the others are measured.

The Model Twenty was the first stereo system to put all of the performance associated with separate audio components into one package. More accurately, into three simple and handsome walnut packages that just plug together and play.

When the Model Twenty appeared, the experts said that it would take an extra three or four hundred dollars—plus a lot more complexity—to make any real improvement on its startling performance. That still holds.

The Model Twenty plays mono or stereo records and FM broadcasts. You can have it with AM radio as well. And there are jacks for making or listening to tape recordings, or for headphones. The Garrard turntable, made to KLH specifications, has a low-mass tone arm and Pickering cartridge with diamond stylus. Vernier tuning and a "zero-center" meter help bring in the most difficult FM stations.

But the sound quality is what KLH owners talk about. The Model Twenty has the range and power needed to fill even the largest living room with the undistorted sound of a symphony orchestra.

Come in and check the standard for yourself. Then take it away and fill your home with music instead of equipment.

Deliciously Different...Called Candy-Cake

It's cake. It's a candy. So deliciously different is this confection that we call it a candy-cake. Four layers of temptingly crunchy, apple-and-ginger flavored pastry are separated by a filling of whipped cream that has even more apple sauce and ginger — and all stacked to resemble a French torte. Then the finished dainty is set to chill and firm up in the refrigerator.

This is definitely a make-the-day-before masterpiece. And, if it seems at all complicated, taken step by step, it's really a convenience product marvel. First that ever-handy canned apple sauce is cooked to a thick and buttery jam. It's yummy with brown sugar, crystallized ginger and spices. When it's cooled, it takes the place of the water called for when making pastry with a mix.

After the blending and rolling, these giant cookies, shaped on the square, bake to a toasty brown in no time. The layers go together with a high and handsome filling that's heavy cream, more of the apple sauce "candy" mixture, and additional vanilla and nutmeg to give it flavor distinction.

Here's a recipe to end the moans of cooks who declare, "I never could bake a cake." The easy answer, "Well, make a candy-cake." For Christmas galas, it's a great dinner finale.

Apple Sauce Candy-Cake

Two cups canned apple sauce
One-half cup brown sugar
Two tablespoons butter
Two tablespoons chopped crystallized ginger
One tablespoon lemon juice
One teaspoon cinnamon

One-half teaspoon allspice
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One package (10-ounce) pastry mix
Two cups heavy cream
One-half cup sugar
One teaspoon vanilla
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg

Combine apple sauce, brown sugar, butter, ginger, lemon juice, cinnamon, allspice and salt in 2-quart saucepan. Simmer over low heat, stirring occasionally, 30 minutes or until thick and smooth. Remove from heat and cool. Place pastry mix in bowl. Blend in three-fourths cup apple sauce mixture. Divide into four parts. Roll each part into eight-inch square. Place squares on baking sheet, or press over bottoms of inverted 8-inch baking pans. Bake at 425 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes or until layers are firm. Cool. Lift layers from pans with spatula. Whip cream until stiff. Fold in remaining apple sauce mixture, sugar, vanilla and nutmeg. Spread between and over top of layers. Chill for 8 hours, or more. Garnish with cherries, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Apple Sauce and Mincemeat...A Happy, Holiday Combo

APPLE-MINCEMEAT PIE is a Happy Holiday Combo — a dessert that's easy to make and moistly delicious — made with all convenience products, ready-to-use pastry mix, canned apple sauce and prepared mincemeat.

Apple sauce and mincemeat become great flavor mates in a lattice-topped pie. It's a dessert that is so easy to make and so moistly delicious you'll find yourself planning it as the final glorious touch for meals all through the festive days.

Using all convenience products — ready-to-use pastry mix, canned apple sauce and prepared mincemeat — you can turn out this pie with the speed and efficiency of a kitchen pro. It's a good idea first to blend the sauce and the mincemeat with the seasonings. Then let the mixture stand, mellowing in flavor and consistency, while you fix the pastry shell.

In a relatively hot oven, the pie bakes in less time than it takes to tell — all the while filling the kitchen with a warm and wonderfully spicy aroma. When the crust's toasty brown and the filling set, that smooth apple sauce goodness will be blended all through, tempering ever so gently the heartier mincemeat and producing its very own new flavor sensation.

Try Apple-Mincemeat Pie for your first feast of the season.

Apple Queen's Brunch

Butter a casserole dish (square if you have it). Layer with frozen French toast. Top with canned apple sauce, a sprinkle of brown sugar and a pat or two of butter. Heat until bubbly. Serve with a rasher of bacon, browned link sausages or a thick broiled slice of baked ham.

Hot Apple Sauce Sundae

Empty the contents of a can of apple sauce into a saucepan. Season liberally with lemon juice, honey and spices (nutmeg and cinnamon). Simmer for at least 30 minutes or until the sauce is thick — reduced by about one-third in quantity. Serve hot over slices of cake a la mode or over plain ice cream. For extra topping add chopped nuts, toasted coconut or crumbled hard candies.

Apple Chutney to Go With Lamb

Heat two cups of canned apple sauce with one-half cup prepared chutney chopped fine. Add a handful of dark raisins, a little grated lemon rind and a bit of ground ginger. Stir until the raisins, a little grated lemon rind and a bit of ground ginger. Stir until the raisins swell up. It's delicious either hot or cold with lamb chops or roast.

NEW REGULATIONS OF INTEREST

Consumers are not forgotten. Many people are working for consumer protection all the time. For example, new Consumer Protection Laws were passed by the New York State 1970 Legislature and effective September 1. How many have you heard about asks Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist?

PROTECTION: The state attorney general will be allowed for the first time to initiate court actions on a consumer's behalf against a merchant charged with an isolated occurrence of deceptions. Previous laws permitted the attorney general's office to step in only in cases where deceptive acts could be proved to be persistent practice.

GARNISHES: Under the previous laws a garnishment, or attachment, could be put by a creditor on a person's wages if his weekly income was over $30. A new law bans garnishes unless the income is over $85.

CREDIT REPORTS: Starting November 1, if you've been denied credit you'll have the right to see the report that a credit rating firm has compiled on you. If you find an error, it can be corrected. It'll be a misdemeanor for the rating firm to refuse to show you your record; but it'll also be a misdemeanor for you to purposely give wrong information.

Celts' Dave Cowens Looks Like Winner

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The glamour picks in the National Basketball Association draft last spring were Pete Maravich by Atlanta and Bob Lanier by Detroit and although both have made considerable progress, the Boston Celtics figure they came up with the No. 1 rookie in big Dave Cowens.

Cowens has played a vital role in Boston's revival this season and teamed with Jo Jo White and John Havlicek to lead Boston to 102-93 victory over Buffalo Thursday night.

In other NBA games, Phoenix topped Detroit 117-114 in overtime and Philadelphia turned back Seattle 125-117.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky defeated the Floridians 126-123 and Denver took Memphis 108-99.

Cowens has taken over the boards for the Celtics and his rebounding was a major factor in the Celts' 11th victory in the last 12 games.

The big rookie picked up four fouls in the first half and then sat out most of the third and fourth periods before coming off the bench to dominate the rebounding at both ends in the final minutes.

Havlicek had 26 points, 11 in the final quarter, and White contributed 35 points. Bob Kauffman led Buffalo with 25 points.

Phoenix blew a 31-point lead against the Pistons but came back to whip Detroit in the extra period.

John Wenzel stole the ball in the final moments and converted two free throws to put the game away for the Suns, who got five points from Connie Hawkins and four from Neal Walker in the overtime. Jimmy Walker of Detroit led all scorers with 38 points while Hawkins had 29.

Philadelphia scored 12 straight points at the outset of the second half, opening a 22-point lead over Seattle, and coasted the rest of the way. Archie Clark collected 12 of his 28 points in the third period and Hal Greer hit for 10 of his 23 in that quarter as the 76ers built a 102-69 lead.

Lee Winfield topped the SuperSonics with 25 points. Kentucky, four points behind with only 1:31 to play, rallied to beat the Floridians. The Colonels scored seven straight points in the final 91 seconds to pull out the victory.

Jim Ligon, who led Kentucky with 28 points, and Les Hunter each dropped in a pair of free throws in the winning rally. Larry Jones and Mack Calvin topped the Floridians' attack with 29 points each.

The Memphis Pros were delayed several hours by a snowstorm in Salt Lake City and were better off in the white stuff because when they finally got to Denver, they were whipped by the Rockets.

The Pros, as cold in the opening quarter as the storm they were stuck in, shot just 25 percent and dropped 12 points down by the half. They stormed back and cut Denver's lead to as little as three points but the Rockets hung on for the victory.

Larry Cannon led Denver with 25 points while Steve Jones' 20 was best for the weary Pros.

Re-Elect Adams					Boston (AP) — Weston W.
Adams Sr., chairman of the board of the Boston Garden Arena Corporation and of the Boston Bruins' National Hockey League team, was re-elected to both positions Thursday.

UC at Delhi, Westchester Is Rated 19th

KINGSTON — Ulster County Community College, which finished 14th in the final basketball poll of the 1969-70 season in the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA), is not listed among the Top 20 in the first poll announced today.

But there are strong indications that the Senators, who travel to Delhi Tech tonight, will be back in the rating before the 1970-71 campaign winds. And observers around the Mid-Hudson Conference circuit are not discounting the possibility of a fourth consecutive UCCC championship.

The UCCC team that demolished Rockland County, 84-50, Wednesday night, is hardly the quintet that suffered a 15-point loss to Westchester County in the season opener. Rockland had managed to stay within eight points of powerful Westons.

Add this to the solid victory over Suffolk, the defending Region XV champions in the game before, and you have a championship, another picture emerging at UCCC. Assuming, of course, that all players stay healthy and hurdle all their academic barriers in January. At the moment, Dutchess rates as a top threat for the title, but reports from the Bridge City indicate that Coach El Evans is likely to lose at least four of his starters because of scholastic deficiencies. And Westchester may lose its top gun—Nate Carter.

Broome Tech of Binghamton is tied for 9th place in the ratings and Westchester Community shares a tie for 19th place.

The top 10 teams in the NJCAA poll have a combined won and lost record of 66 wins and only four losses. Seven of the 10 were unbeaten at the time of the ratings.

The teams in order of rating are: Vincennes U., Vincennes, Ind., 156 points; San Jacinto JC, Pasadena, Tex., 115; Robert Morris, Pittsburgh, 101; Brevard JC, Cocoa, Fla., 90; Casper College, Casper, Wyo., 62; Ferrum JC, Ferrum, Va., 45; Kilgore JC, Kilgore, Tex., 36; Ellsworth JC, Iowa Falls, Ia., 29; Hutchinson JC, Hutchinson, Kan., and Broome Tech, Binghamton, 24 each.

Frantic Sunday Coming Up

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The casual flip of a coin could climax a frantic final day of the National Football League's regular season Sunday.

With 10 teams still bidding for five remaining playoff berths, the closest races in NFL history go down to the wire and things are so tight that Dallas, Detroit and the New York Giants may need a telephonic coin flip to settle the muddled situation.

All three teams carry 9-4 records into their final games, the Giants and Cowboys in the National Conference's Eastern Division and the Lions in the Central Division. Detroit cannot catch Minnesota—one of three teams that have already clinched division crowns—but can qualify for the playoffs as the best second place finisher in the conference.

If the Cowboys, Lions and Giants all win Sunday or if the Giants and Lions play ties and the Cowboys win, it will require a coin flip to determine the NFC's fourth qualifier.

Should the Giants and Cowboys both win Sunday's games—and ended tied at 10-4—New York hosts Los Angeles and Dallas is at home against Houston—the Giants would get the top spot in the Eastern Division on the basis of a better record within the division.

And should Detroit beat Green Bay and match Dallas' record, a coin flip would be required to determine the playoff berth.

If Dallas wins its game and the Giants and Lions play ties, the Cowboys would be Eastern champs and New York and Detroit would flip for the final playoff berth.

The Lions could get in without a flip too, if they win and both New York and Dallas lose. Should that happen and should St. Louis beat Washington, the Cards would be Eastern champs. The Lions would also make it without a flip if either the Giants win and Dallas lose or Dallas wins and the Giants lose, provided Detroit wins.

Once you've digested that set of contingencies, you're ready to consider the other undecided races.

In the American Conference, Oakland has captured the Western Division and Baltimore the Eastern. Cincinnati has a one game lead over Cleveland in the Central and can clinch that division with either a victory or tie against Boston. Cleveland can qualify for the playoffs only as a division champion, a spot the Browns can earn on the basis of intra-division records if they beat Denver and the Bengals lose.

The second place qualifier in the American Conference will be either Miami or Kansas City. The Dolphins can clinch it with a victory or tie against Buffalo while Kansas City must beat San Diego and hope Miami loses.

In the NFC Western Division, San Francisco holds a one-game lead over Los Angeles and can clinch with a victory or tie against Oakland. The Rams, to stay alive, must beat the Raiders and then hope that the Raiders can knock off San Francisco.

It's hard to believe but there are four games with no playoff bearing.

The New York Jets are at Baltimore Saturday, and Minnesota is at Atlanta, Chicago at New Orleans and Pittsburgh at Philadelphia on Sunday. And even there, the No. 1 draft choice is at stake with New Orleans and Philadelphia both 2-10-1 going into the final game. If they remain tied, the No. 1 choice will be determined by—what else?—a coin flip.

Area Schools Vie Against KHS-Coleman

KINGSTON John A. Coleman and Kingston High School fans may find it hard to believe, but six other basketball contests are being played tonight. And though it may be sacrilegious to state, some of the other tilts may be slightly more important in the overall picture than the CHS-KHS go around.

The Kingston-Coleman game is being played at the Statesmen's court on Hurley Avenue. The Junior varsity clash will get underway at 6:30 p.m. with the varsity action following.

Other games on the local scene include New Paltz at Ontario, Highland at Rondout Valley, Millbrook at Red Hook, Dover Plains at Rhinebeck, Pine Plains at Marlboro, and Our Lady of Lourdes at Saugerties.

The Ontario Indians will try to maintain at least a tie for first place in the Ulster County Athletic League. New Paltz is hoping to get back on the winning track after losing a league game to Rondout last week.

Injuries may be a factor in the outcome of the encounter as the Indians' Joe Bush and Mike Ricciardella, both starters, have troublesome ankles. Should the duo be sidelined, Coach Ron Pope will probably insert Dan Brown, his sixth man, into the lineup and choose from a host of others to get player number five.

Anchoring down starting berths are Vlad Hoyt, Dan Smith, and Steve Frasier. Ontario is 3-1 on the season, the only loss coming in overtime to Coleman.

New Paltz brings to Boiceville a talented backcourt of Rick Pesavento and Ed Grainger.

John Palonis, Jay Ackert, and Harold Anderson add the beef underneath. First man off the bench is Brad Hart.

The Huggies sport a 1-2 mark, 1-1 in the league. After a loss to Ellenville, New Paltz beat Pine Bush and lost a squeaker to Rondout. The Frank Davis coached team has been fine defensively, but has had problems putting points on the board.

At Stone Ridge, the battle between defending UCAL champion Rondout and challenging Highland should be a fierce one. The Ganders tasted defeat Tuesday at Ellenville and will be looking to fly back into the victory column. Highland is fresh from a not too impressive but nonetheless winning showing against Coleman.

The thing to look for in this struggle is the long-awaited head to head confrontation between Perry Monroe of the visiting Highlanders and newcomer Bill Joyner of Rondout. They're both leapers and both are scoring threats. The winner of this match-up should lead his team to victory.

Highland has lost once, but it was a UCAL test against Marlboro. A win tonight will more than even that score.

Pine Bush and Marlboro stand even at 1-1 in UCAL play as they take to the floor in Duke country. The Bushmen offset a loss to New Paltz with a win over hapless Walkkill. Marlboro tripped Highland after falling at the hands of Ontario.

Rich Gerentine and George Salinovich have been doing most of the heavy work for Marlboro. Area coaches had rated the Dukes highly before the season started but a loss tonight might eliminate them from the title picture.

The Bushmen are faced with a similar situation: contention or mediocrity. Jeff Decker and Tom Novak will lead Pine Bush into what they hope will be the former.

Saugerties will be looking to stay on the winning track against Lourdes in their DCSL meeting. The Sawyers dropped three on the road before edging Jay in the home opener. Rich Koegel heads the attack with assistance from Ray Bean and Jerry Malgieri.

Sayers' Moving Tribute to a Departed Friend

Reading Through Misty Eyes

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Gale Sayers still is getting help from Brian Piccolo.

That could hit you a little strange considering Brian Piccolo has been dead for nearly six months now, but you wouldn't think it was strange at all if you knew the deep feeling which existed between the two men.

Gale Sayers probably is the greatest running back in the Chicago Bears' history which is saying something when you take into account Bronko Nagurski was a running back for them also.

More than that Gale Sayers is a genuinely warm, decent human being, and although he once got up on his feet in a banquet room and told a packed audience that he loved

Brian Piccolo, don't get the idea he's one of those peculiar football players Dave Meggys has everybody talking about.

Brian Piccolo, who was Gale Sayers' backup man and roommate with the Bears, died of cancer last June at the age of 26. Two weeks before Piccolo died the New York chapter of the Professional Football Writers' Association presented Sayers with the George S. Halas award as the most courageous player in pro football because of the spectacular way he returned following an operation on his right knee the season before.

When Gale Sayers stood up to accept the award, he didn't talk about himself, he talked about his roommate, Brian Piccolo, who had just finished a series of cobalt treatments in a hospital a few blocks away and had gone back home.

"He has the heart of a giant," Gale Sayers said, "and that rare form of courage that allows him to kid himself and his opponent, cancer. He has the mental attitude that makes me proud to have a friend who spells out the word courage 24 hours a day of his life."

"You flatter me by giving me this award but I tell you here and now that I accept it for Brian Piccolo. Brian Piccolo is the man of courage who should receive the George S. Halas award. It is mine tonight, it is Brian Piccolo's tomorrow. I love Brian Piccolo and I'd like all of you to love him, too. Tonight, when you hit your knees, please ask God to love him..."

Gale Sayers still finds it hard to talk about his friend, Brian Piccolo.

Gale Sayers, a black man, talks for awhile about Brian Piccolo, who was a white man, and suddenly he stops right in the middle. He doesn't say anything more. He chokes up.

A guy was talking to Sayers here Wednesday about his second knee operation eight weeks ago, this time the surgery was on his left knee, and the Bears' brilliant running back admitted the knee still was a little weak.

"Are you worried?" the guy asks Sayers.

"No," he said softly but firmly.

"How come?"

"Well, for one thing I've been through this before," Sayers said. "For another thing, my association with 'Pick' has helped me. When this second knee injury came along and I knew I needed an operation, just having been around Pick made me accept it much better. I didn't say 'Why me?'"

Why me? Look, at least I'm here."

Gale Sayers has written a book along with Al Silverman, the talented Editor of Sport Magazine. The book is called I Am Third—"The Lord is first, my friends are second, and I am Third"—and if you don't read it believe me you're missing something. Viking is the publisher and the book goes for $6.95.

It is not like the one Jim Bouton wrote nor like the one Dave Meggys has coming out soon.

"I'm not a whistle-blower," Sayers says. "I don't want to cause waves."

The book will though. Nice warm ones. I particularly remember Chapter Six. It's entitled simply Pick.

I found only one trouble with that chapter. It's a little hard to read when your eyes are misty.

Synthetic Turf—It Hurts

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State University, playing all of its 10-game football schedule on supposedly safer artificial turf, this year suffered more player injuries than ever before.

But while the team doctor believes a synthetic field allows players to run faster and hit harder, he doesn't blame that. Instead, says Dr. Lawrence Jarrett, the culprit is the modern equipment that's worn these

Out of 26 injuries for the MSU Spartans this year, 13 sidelined their victims for the rest of the season, Jarrett said. Some 19 "important players" missed

"considerable portions" of the Spartans' 4-6 season this fall, said Fred Stabile, sports information director.

Last year, when MSU first began playing and practicing on the tough, asphalt-based playing surface, season-long injuries sidelined about a dozen players—more than twice the norm over all the years stretching back to 1896 when football started in East Lansing.

Safety was a widely stressed rationale for the various types of synthetic carpet that have been promoted. MSU had one installed during the summer of 1969 at a cost of $250,000.

Major manufacturers bought lavish advertisements in mass-circulated sporting magazines and athletic trade publications to tout the contribution of their fields to avoiding injuries.

Wearing short, molded-rubber cleats long used by European soccer teams, players supposedly would face less risk to knees and ankles than they had with longer, nylon and metal cleats on grass and mud.

But 10 knee injuries and four sprained ankles led the list of categories that cost the Spartans top players on football Saturdays this year, Jarrett said. Jarrett, white-haired and bluntly outspoken, won't knock the field, but says it does help speed up the collisions.

There's no question that the field adds a dimension to the game," says Jarrett. "Linemen run faster. There's greater traction, they have better control, there's greater pursuit," he said.

And the more sophisticated uniform equipment, Jarrett is convinced influences the injury rate. He says he'd like to see some body like the Big Ten Athletic Commission order a return to some of the old equipment—especially leather helmets without face masks.

UCCC Bowlers Place Second

STONE RIDGE Ulster County Community College bowlers won two straight matches by 5-2 margins over Orange County to complete the regular 1970 season with a 4-4 win and lost record and 33-23 points rating that virtually assures them of second place in the Mid-Hudson Conference.

The Senators outscored Orange, 2556-2451, on the tough Middletown lanes, then returned to Ferraro's Bowlerama where Jim Simmons anchored the team with a brilliant 623 and 2676-2415 edge in pinfall. Simmons put together a hat trick 214, 207 and 202 for his 623 which is believed to be the highest individual series to date in the Mid-Hudson Conference.

The season is scheduled to end today with a match between the champion Dutchess bowlers and Orange.

Frank Saccoman fired 549 at Middletown and Floyd Halwick had 204-538 at Bowlerama.

Frank Martin was OCC's top kegger in both matches with 564 and 572.

Coach Rick Gelston made a successful debut as UCCC ten-pin coach, succeeding Al DiBernardo.

Gelston, an Assistant Professor in Business, has been identified with area tenpin leagues the past few years, but is not participating this season.

He relled for two years in the Petersen Merchants and Miderama circuits and was a member of the fabulous Spartan Pools squad which not only won the $1,500 first prize in the Kingston Bowling Association tournament, but also placed second in the Colonial City Classic and Rip Van Winkle Classic, both top money events.

Plunkett's margin was not so great, Bagnell said.

Blanda and Plunkett will receive "Maxies" at the club's annual dinner here Jan. 18.

"Maxies" are statuettes of the late Robert (Tiny) Maxwell, for whom the club is named.

Both as a substitute for quarterback Daryle Lamonica as a place kicker, Blanda played a major role in the Raiders' drive to the Western Division title in the American Conference of the NFL.

Dear Abby

Proper Gift for Her?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old bachelor who has been dating a 29-year-old divorcee who has two small children. Ella and her children live with her parents, and I've been invited to have Christmas dinner there. Question: Should I take gifts for the children? How about gifts for Ella's parents? I want to give Ella something, too, but I'm not sure what. Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated.

When I'm invited out for dinner I usually bring a bottle of wine. Would that be okay in this case?

Maybe I should add, I think Ella is much more serious about me than I am about her. In other words, I enjoy the single life and would like to stay that way for the time being. Thank you.

HUNTSVILLE
DEAR HUNTSVILLE: Take toys for the children. If you are sure Ella's parents approve and imbibe, wine is always a lovely gift. Otherwise, if you know something of their interests, books or record albums are usually appreciated.

Buy Ella something impersonal, avoiding intimate wearing apparel. A "safe" gift would be stationery, with Ella's name and present address on it, to let her know (subtly) that you have no intentions of changing it in the foreseeable future. (And P.S. Watch out for mistletoe and stay sober!)

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I go to a dinner party at the home of friends, I just hate to end up sitting away from my own husband and next to somebody else's. I'm not antisocial, but I would much rather have my own husband for a dinner partner. Last Saturday at a party, my hostess said, "Myrtle, you come over here and sit with Steve (her husband)," and then she took my husband for herself. I politely said, "If you don't mind, I still enjoy sitting by my own husband."

When we got home my husband said I was wrong and should have sat where she wanted to put me. I said instead of being mad at me he should have been flattered. We'd like your opinion.

MYRT AND MIKE
DEAR MYRT: I'm with Mike.

DEAR ABBY: I work in a candy store. With me is a teenage girl who eats about as much candy and nuts as she sells. She also takes some home with her, which is against the rules. Not only that, but when her friends come in, she gives them a lot more for their money than she should.

I told her in a nice way that she shouldn't be doing these things because the boss might catch her and she said, "It won't break him." I know she needs the job and I don't want to be a squealer, but I think something should be done. What?

WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: Tell her again. And this time be a little less "nice" and a little more direct. Explain that stealing may not break the boss, but it could "break" her in more ways than one. When petty thieves "get away" with stealing small things, it gives them courage to steal bigger things. You would be doing this light-fingered girl a tremendous favor to keep after her, until she sees the light.

What's your problem? You'll

Dr. Lincoln Falls in Love

NEW YORK (AP) — "Matt The series, including the most a sum of money to bet on their Lincoln," ABC's psychiatrist, recent episode, suffered from ability to answer questions in dreary, obvious scripts and various categories. The questions will be made visual by the use of news reel clips. Meanwhile, some midseason remodeling is also being undertaken on ABC's "The Young Lawyers," which continues in spite of its low ratings. Major costar, Philip Clark, who will pace as a student lawyer.

Most television series drop weddings into the mix in a manner designed to boost ratings since the public seems to respond so eagerly to romance. In the case in point, however, it was just another chapter in Dr. Lincoln's adventures. The episode was a departure from the show's usual formula of psychiatry motivated stories. Our hero meets the widow with a small son. They are engaged almost immediately, whereupon the girl finds in the course of her annual physical checkup that she suffers from an incurable disease—carefully unidentified—and will be dead in a year. Dr. Lincoln won't be around much longer, either. His final appearance will be on Jan. 14, a victim of the Nielsen ratings.

Back in the days of whist, someone or other thought of the maxim, "When in doubt, lead trumps." An auction bridge writer told about the dozens of shoeless men walking the streets of London because they hadn't remembered to pull trumps.

Today's hand is a classic instance of this. South ruffs the second diamond with his deuce of trumps and Counts his winners in accordance with the code word ARCH. He sees four probable losers unless he can ruff two spades in dummy. He also sees that he can do this, provided three rounds of trumps aren't played first. Then he plays his king of trumps.

He has no doubt about this. He can afford that one trump lead and a trump return. Suppose South is allowed to hold that trick? Can he afford a second trump play? No! Defender may take that trick and lead a third trump, whereupon South will have no place to put his fourth spade. Therefore, when the king of trumps holds, South should stop playing trumps and lead spades. He plays to dummy's king and back to his ace. Then he ruffs a spade; comes back to his hand with a club; ruffs his last
